It's not that easy to dim Pleasanton lights, it's not cheap, either

Five ways to cut use

PLEASANTON — Dimming the city's street lights to save money and energy could become a complicated, costly project, according to a staff report prepared for next week's council meeting. And spinoff effects like crime, accidents, insurance rates and "citizen security" could offset any potential savings.

The idea clicked three months ago when councilmember Frank Brandes suggested first a 20 per cent then 40 or 50 per cent cutback. He drew a dim response from fellow councilmembers, but won support for a detailed analysis.

Now that report may cast a shadow on his plans.

The city has a projected $228,000 PG&E bill for this year based on July's $19,000 billing. City council already has peeled $46,000 from this year's budget to cover the anticipated savings if lighting is reduced by 20 per cent.

Unfortunately, the city already is in the third month of its fiscal year, and cannot recoup all its projected savings.

Essentially, the staff report offers five alternatives and one of many hypothetical combination plans, but stops short of a recommendation pending an even more detailed analysis and survey.

The most direct suggestion entails turning off 20 per cent of the city's 2,012, 7500-lumen mercury vapor lights, the most common kind. Roughly $43,000 would be saved along with 390,000 kilowatt hours of energy — enough to light 48 single family homes.

It would cost another $2,700 to flip the switch by removing photo cells on the light poles. But the city risks another $35,000 in "qualifying charges" if they want the lights turned back on.

Alternatively, the 175 watt, 7500-lumen fixtures could be exchanged for 100 watt, 3500-lumen lights, thus saving the city $26,000 per year and PG&E 606,000 kilowatt hours.

Unfortunately, it would cost $50,300 to make the switch.

The third suggestion calls for replacing the photo-electric cells with automatic timers. Instead of burning about 11 hours per night, the

Tourists at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory

Touring lab visitors awed by 'mind boggling' display

Silver Anniversary Family Days at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory got off to a flying start this weekend as officials unveiled many "mind boggling" exhibits.

Friends and families of lab employes toured parts of the facility usually tagged "off limits" after workers locked their secrets up in drawers and hid certain projects under sheets of black plastic.

All nationals from the Sino-Soviet bloc were denied entry.

Displays ranging from nuclear weapons to lasers and magnetic fusion energy fascinated the tourists who witnessed the latest technology in action and heard hours of explanations about the equipment.

The computer center was open for ambitious visitors who challenged the world's most powerful scientific computer to games of baseball, chess, and monopoly to mention a few.

Guests even got a glimpse of the soon-to-be functioning Shiva laser

Sandee Irwin, a 1976 Granada High graduate, begins her second year at Annapolis.

Granada grad's sails trim for Annapolis

Women are holding their own as the second year of coeducation begins this week at the nation's military academies and one Livermore resident has been exceptionally active as one of the first woman cadets in the 131 year history of Annapolis.

Sandee Irwin, a 1976 graduate of Granada High School, "loved the academics" according to her mother, and still had time to letter as a varsity cheerleader. She was also chosen to represent the women plebes in a painting now hanging in the Naval Museum in Washington, D.C.

Summer training for the second crop of cadets began in July and Annapolis, West Point and the Coast Guard Academy reported fewer freshman women dropped out of this year's summer program than last year.

"It has gone much better than anyone anticipated," said one Coast Guard official in New London, Conn. Similar assessments came from the Air Force Academy, West Point and Annapolis.

Dropout rates for women, though higher than for men, are declining according to the academies. Sixty-three of Annapolis' first 81 female midshipmen survived their freshman year, including Sandee. They have returned as upperclassmen and will watch the newest group which officials believe will have a lower motality rate.

Spokesmen have said women know more about what to expect at the academies now because of publicity the coed programs have received.

The proportion of women in the service academies has remained small — one in 15 plebes entering the Naval Academy this year, for example. The institutions said they eased physical requirements somewhat since going coed in June 1976 but made no

September 11, 1972 proved a monumental day for public transportation in the Bay Area with the startup of service by the Bay Area Rapid Transit District.

Mini-sewer plant plan

Alameda County Planning Commissioner will get their first peek at the state Regional Water Quality Control Board's policy on small scale, "package" sewage treatment plants tomorrow.

County commissioners have been working on their own "package plant" policy to regulate the small, self-contained treatment plants.

The commission is scheduled to meet at 1:30 p.m. in the Public Works Building, 399 Elmhurst St., Hayward.

Temporary water hike

California Water Livermore's Service, major water supplier, has been granted authority to raise its rates 7.5 per cent for a period of six months only.

The temporary surcharge is to recover financial losses caused by area residents' voluntary conservation program. The new surcharge will increase the average monthly bill from $10.39 to $11.13. There will be no increase for the first 500 cubic feet used by metered customers.

The rates won't be effective until four days after the firm files a new rate schedule with the state Public Utilities Commission.

Insulation plan sparks controversy

LIVERMORE — Controversy over current and proposed city ordinances will highlight Monday's city council meeting beginning at 8 p.m.

A proposed energy ordinance that would force homeowners to insulate their homes before title is transferred, at an average estimated cost of $400 per home, will receive its first reading and could become law in five weeks.

A senior building inspector for the city estimated that more than 90 per cent of the homes in Livermore would be affected by the proposal.

Air conditioned homes would require a power-driven attic fan under terms of the proposed ordinance unless they were insulated to an even higher degree than non-air conditioned homes.

Passage would mean that many more attic inspections would be required. The city recommends hiring an additional building inspector after the ordinance has been in force for six months.

Additional clerical help might also be required, the city feels.

To pay for the increased payroll, chief building inspector Herbert Street recommends the attic inspection fee be boosted 50 per cent, from $10 to $15.

One Livermore resident wrote the city council asking them to postpone consideration of the measure pending further thought.

Elsie and Fred Holdener return to the council to hear an oral report on

Schwab will resign school board post

PLEASANTON — The Times learned Friday that Joe Schwab, a Pleasanton Joint School District trustee the past nine years, will resign his position in the next two weeks.

Schwab reportedly has notified trustees of his decision, which is based on personal reasons.

Well-known throughout the Valley as a civic figure and attorney, Schwab has not attended the last seven meetings of the Pleasanton board.

The Education Code states a trustee cannot have three consecutive unexcused absences from board meetings. However, most if not all of Schwab's most recent absences are believed to have been excused.

Schwab last attended a Pleasanton board meeting on June 22.

A check of board minutes from July of 1976 up to date reveals that he has missed 23 of 48 regular, special or joint sessions of the Pleasanton board.

His term runs through March of 1979.

Schwab's resignation would likely trigger another appointive process for the Pleasanton board.

Such a process was necessitated little more than a year ago when Dr. Guy Clark resigned and moved to Albuquerque, New Mexico. The board at that time, which included Schwab, eventually appointed Dennis Reidy to complete Clark's unexpired term.

Reidy was defeated in his bid for a

Alien arrests increasing in N. Calif.

PLEASANTON — Border Patrol agents of the Livermore Sector, covering the 49 counties of northern California, arrested 5,875 undocumented aliens during August.

This was 1,252 more than were arrested the previous month and 586 more than were arrested during the same period one year ago.

Of the total arrested, 5,277 or 90 per cent were employed and earning the following wages: 149 — less than $2.50 per hour; 5,028 — $2.50 to $4.49 per hour; 65 — $4.50 to $6.49 per hour; and 35 — over $6.50 per hour. Thirteen were receiving welfare or other public assistance.

Tomatoes galore in Pleasanton field

A 20-acre field of tomatoes ripe for picking has been opened in Pleasanton this weekend on Bernal Avenue across from the Fairgrounds.

Kennedy Farms of Tracy picked green tomatoes from the field last week for shipment to the East Coast leaving behind acres and acres of tomatoes ready for eating, canning or sauce right now.

The price is right too, $3 for a five gallon bucket or about ten cents a pound.

"It's hard to leave a field like this when there are so many of them," said a woman as she drove off with 120 pounds. The California Department of Agriculture also supplies information for bargain hunters willing to pick their own produce. Call the state free at (800) 852-7525 for the names of all farms in the area selling bargain fruits and vegetables.

Other locations open this weekend:

TRACY:

- Five T Ranch, 27369 S. Lammers Rd.; pick your own green beans, black eyed peas, and pinto beans, 20 cents a pound; tomatoes, 15 cents a pound.
- The Country Place, 23577 S. Patterson Pass Rd.; pick your own black eyed peas, okra, butter and lima beans, 20 cents a pound.
- Letty Fornesero, 7681 W. Linne, ready-picked grapefruit, 15 cents a pound.

BRENTWOOD:

- Three Nuns Farm, Highway 4 and Sunset Road, pick your own peaches, 20 cents a pound.
- Bloomfield Farm, Highway 4 and Marsh Creek Road; ready-picked peaches, 35 cents a pound or $5 a lug.

Other farms to check:

Emillio and Roy Ghiggeri, Brentwood Road and Sellers Avenue and Slatten Ranch on Lone Tree Way.

Brentwood is reached by Vasco Road, off I-580 in eastern Livermore; go north and Tracy is reached from I-205 or I-580.

City report chills mini-sewers

PLEASANTON — Small scale sewage treatment systems should be prohibited in new developments, but might be suitable in some of the city's problem fringe areas now served by septic tanks.

Such is the advice being offered city council members by the city manager's office in a report on package plants prepared for this week's meeting.

The recommended policy may prove to be a pain to would-be ridgelands developers William Apperson and Carl Nipper, and an embarassment to the city.

City council members have consistently agreed to play governmental overseer to the "package plant" Apperson wants to use at his proposed Diamond A Dude Ranch on the family ridge. State law requires all private plants be supervised by a government agency.

Council reaffirmed its position this past spring in a close 3-2 vote after opponents tried to unsettle the long standing agreement.

Nipper's proposed Rancho Sunol Estates, a 94-de luxe-home development on the Pleasanton Ridge, also would use a "package plant."

County planning commissioners are scheduled to debate their recommended policy this Monday.

Pleasanton eyes bargain lot

PLEASANTON — The city has a chance to buy a 14-acre vacant lot behind the Valley Community Services District sewage treatment plant and use it for a fire station, water reclamation or expansion of bordering Val Vista park.

The land is on Alameda County's property tax auction block because back taxes have not been paid in five years. While it's valued by the county assessor at $71,900, the city can have it for $18,500.

City manager Clay Brown is recommending council exercise its right of first refusal and have the property pulled from the Oct. 28 auction. It's the only land in the city that is on the tax block this year. County wide, 151 parcels are up for sale.

The lot is bound on the north and west by a Zone 7 drainage canal; on the east by the Val Vista tract; and on the south by Val Vista Park. The Valley Community Services District plant lies across the canal to the west of the lot.

The planned Stoneridge Drive bridge across I-680 eventually will take traffic near the northern tip of the lot, and may mean the city will have to build a bridge across the canal. But it isn't necessary, says Brown.

Part of the land could house Fire Station No. 2 after I-680 is bridged.

the adequacy of the Holdener Dairy Sign on Stanley Boulevard.

City law requires the dairy sign be parallel to the flow of traffic, but the Holdeners say the speed of traffic on the curved road mandates that the sign be placed perpendicular to the street for proper visibility.

After lengthy debate, the council decided the sign should be moved farther back, behind the property line, and kept parallel to the road. Council members will discuss the worth of that idea after a six-week test period.

Owners of the Town House Motel on First Street will attempt to win a variance from the city's sign law and add another sign to the motel's exterior. Trees block the present sign, they argue.

Thee meeting will begin at 8 p.m. Monday at city council chambers, 39 South Livermore Ave.

other special accommodations for women.

Because women could not meet physical requirements that stressed upper body strength exercises requiring balance and agility were substituted.

Sandee prepared for her first year by running and exercising under the supervision of Granada teacher Claude Cameron.

Despite the adjusted academy physical requirements many of the women still found the demands greater than they were accustomed to and a source of trouble.

While home this summer Sandee continued to run and told her parents the physical and mental demands of the academy were equally difficult.

Six out of 80 women dropped out during summer training in 1976. Four more women have dropped out since returning as sophmores.

A Naval spokesman said the female plebes this year have "run the whole gamut," and their performance has been competitive with the men's. He added 1,135 women applied for this year's class, an increase from 759 last year despite a small decline in total applications.

The academies observed last year men and women stood on equal footing in the classroom though some differences were noticed. The sexes rated equally high in math and English aptitude, while the women scored higher in the foreign languages and men did better in military science, environmental science and engineering fundamentals.

Sandee has chosen to major in oceanography and told her parents she intended to give up cheer leading in favor of scuba diving this year.

with its 20 sprawling arms that focus at one point in the center of the monster.

The Materials Fabrication Division (MFD) hosted 28 different exhibits and demostrations that depict a quarter century of man's conquest of the mechanical engineering field. Within MFD the abstract plans of inventors and scientists are converted from the drawing board to to a functioning piece of equipment.

Clyde Hood, MFD's superintendent and a 22-year LLL employe, showed The Times thousands of precision machines that cut, drill, roll, and shape various metals and plastics into desired parts to meet the unique needs of the lab. The machines range from jig bores that can cut a 42-inch diameter turbine wheel to a diamond turning machine that trims highly polished metal accurate to one millionth of an inch.

One startling fact Hood pointed out was that most of the machines are of the 1955 to 1957 vintage which speaks highly of the repair shop that maintains them.

Among the parts for these rollers, grinders, and cutters are some fairly expensive items. For example it is not uncommon to find a diamond saw blade costing $400 or a solid sapphire rod used in the optics facility.

About 70 per cent of the work done in the optics facility is geared to the laser program. Here machines housed in dust proof shields that look like oversized oxygen tents, polish and test lenses and mirrors required to be flawless. On display was a carbon dioxide laser focusing mirror used for the "Baseball II" project. This mirror — the only one of its kind — makes a green apple look like a yellow pear.

Attached to the optics facility is a "clean" room where typical scientists decked out in white hooded coats and sanitary booties test equipment that could be damaged by even the slightest speck of dust.

full four-year term last March as three new members gained election— Earnestine Schneider, Nancy Hawtrey, and Dr. Ronald Ott.

The board elected Betty Nostrand, the only other holdover member, as president of the board.

Trustees are known to be concerned by Schwab's continued absences what with crucial problems of finances and the collective bargaining process at hand.

Between July of 1976 and January of 1977, Schwab was present at 17 of 25 regular, special and joint (with Amador) board meetings.

However, a further check of minutes reveals that his absences became more frequent in late April and May of this year. He did not attend an of the four budget meetings in July, nor two subsequent meetings.

Joe Schwab

Prior to running for reelection in 1975, The Times had asked Schwab about his absenteeism which prior to that time had also caused concern.

If the Pleasanton board should ultimately appoint a replacement, the new person would probably not be sated until November. This would still leave 16 months in Schwab's term.

VCSD consultants

Citizen advisors eye parks

DUBLIN — The Valley Community Services District Citizens' Advisory Committee will have their next session Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the VCSD board conference room, 7051 Dublin Blvd., Dublin.

Included on the agenda will be a report on the VCSD board of directors' special meeting of Aug. 29 and regular meeting of Aug. 16.

Other agenda items will be heard from residents attending the meeting plus a report on the masterplan update study regarding parks and recreation. The masterplan design outline for community workshop will be reviewed.

The VCSD Citizens' Advisory Committee (CAC) on Parks and Recreation consists of seven citizen members appointed by the VCSD board of directors. They serve two year terms.

The CAC is interested and involved in all aspects of our local parks and recreation programs and facilities. This includes future planning, seeing improvements to programs and facilities and acting in a community liaison role.

The committee functions by responding to both VCSD board and citizen requests and making recommendations to the VCSD directors.

CAC is also involved in the current Master Plan update study. It is encouraging further citizen and community participation in this endeavor.

The CAC conducts public meetings on the second and fourth Tuesday of each month. Meetins begin a 8 p.m.. They are held in the board conference room of the VCSD general offices located at 7051 Dublin Blvd., Dublin.

Public participation in these meetings is welcome.

The committee is composed of the following members: Chairman Joseph Covello, Roger Fiske, Pete Hegarty, Linda Jeffery, Dick Nichols, John Torpey and Steve Williams.

Covello was elected Sept. 6 to serve as a director on the VCSD board. He will not be CAC chairman after he assumes his duties as VCSD director officially Nov. 25.

VCSD is accepting applicat rs until Sept. 16 from interested citizens who wish to participate as CAC members. Resumes may be submitted to VCSD General Manager, VCSD, 7051 Dublin Blvd., Dublin California lights would go on at darkness and shut off at a fixed interval, some 5½ hours, according to the report.

Report dims views on street light cut

But variations in the length of nights might turn the system off at 2 a.m. in the summer and 11 p.m. in the winter.

It would save the city $45,000 and 1.1 million kilowatt hours, but would cost $83,000.

Then again, the photoelectric cells could be recalibrated so lights come on one hour later and go off one hour earlier.

The city would save $20,000 and PG&E 440,000 kilowatt hours. It would cost $22,000 to adjust the cells.

But "lighting levels would be reduced at perhaps the most critical times," warns the report.

The fifth suggestion entails replacing all 11,000-lumen lights in the city with lower wattage bulbs.

While the city would shave $12,100 from its yearly bill and PG&E save 216,200 kilowatt hours, it would cost $17,950 to change the bulbs.

"A cursory look at the street lighting map and one quick field inspection" created the combination alternative where some lights are turned off and others changed.

In staff's example, changing 20 per cent of the 7500-lumen lights to 3500-lumen lights and 50 per cent of the 11,000-lumen lights to 7500-lumen lights would save the city $10,400 and PG&E 229,000 kilowatt hours.

But it would cost $19,025.

The report suggests a detailed field study of lighting needs and varying combinations. It would take a minimum six months and initial $10,000 budget to complete the survey.

Or, because of "the press of other work and lack of staff," the city could hire private consultants to undertake the study.

But staff warns "indirect cost increases could easily offset any savings."

Rec plans scheduled by VCSD

DUBLIN — Summer fun will not end this fall since the Valley Community Services District (VCSD) Recreation Department has lined up classes and activities to kee p those int erested informed and entertained.

The first registration for fall classes will be Monday at the Shannon Park Community Center from 7 to 9 p.m. The Annual Open House of the VCSD Recreation Department will be held at this same tim e. Area residents will have the opportunity to meet and speak with instructors at this Open House.

Registrations will continue at Shannon Park Community Center, 11600 Shannon Avenue, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Registrations by mail are also acceptable with an enclosed registration mcpomple d.eH J. form completed. However, mail-in registrations will not be recorded until Tuesday, Sept. 13 at 9 a.m. Those attending the evening registration - open house will have first preference in class selections.

Registrations are taken on a first come, first served basis. Classes are limited in size. When the maximum has been reached, the class will be closed. After classes have been filled, waiting lists will be kept and new classes will be started when possible.

Full refund is given if a class is cancelled by VCSD Recreation Department or if withdrawal from a class is made prior to the starting date of the class. No refunds will be given after a class has started.

No classes will be held during Thanksgiving week, Nov. 21 to Nov. 27.

All programs take place at Shannon Park Community Center unless otherwise indicated. Call 828-7711 for further information.

Amador offers adult ed menu

PLEASANTON — Amador Adult Education program will be offering several classes at Foothill High School this quarter.

Beginning and intermediate guitar will be offered on Tuesday evenings from 7 to 10 p.m. starting Sept. 20. Each class is divided into three sections. Beginning section starts with "This is the Guitar." Beginners learn 16 to 18 chords, 3 strums, 2 "finger picks;" and can play 50 to 60 songs.

Guitar sessions cover how to care, buy, tune, level the guitar and the basics of how to read music. Intermediate section covers a different artist each week, using style of playing associated with the artists.

Another class being taught at Foothill is doll house building, scheduled for Wednesdays from 7 to 10 p.m. Each student will cut out and build a doll house. Students will be shown the "tricks" to making their house look like the real thing. Types, use and history of the doll house will be discussed.

Other classes scheduled for Foothill High School include: Astronomy (telescope) slated for Tuesday evenings from 7 to 10 p.m.; U.S. History II held on Monday and Wednesday evenings from 7to 9:30 p.m.; Bookkeeping and accounting on Monday from 7 to 10 p.m.; and typing (intermediate) on Monday evenings from 7 to 10 p.m.

Pre-registration for these classes will be held on Sept. 12 through 16 at Amador Adult Education offices at 1055 Santa Rita Road (adjacent to the Amador Valley High parking lot).

For further information, call 462-0022.

Chabot invites late signups

Valley Campus of Chabot College will hold its late registration for autumn quarter from 6 to 9 p.m. Autumn quarter begins Sept. 19 and ends Dec. 16.

A variety of new offerings are available in the day, late afternoon, evening and Saturday mornings. In addition to the Valley Campus courses, there are classes offered at Granada High School, in Livermore, at Amador Valley High School in Pleasanton and at Dublin High School in Dublin.

Assistant dean of instruction, Charles W. Brydon, has announced that the college will be moving into its new facilities at the Valley Campus site and will be offering expanded programs in several new areas.

Counselors are available to answer specific questions. Classes are open to any student who is a high school graduate or is 18 years of age or older and who can profit from the instruction offered.

Students who live in the state, as defined by law and local policy, may attend the college without tuition charges. Those living in other community college districts may be required to meet permit regulations.

Students' appetites whetted for another year of reading, writing and eating

School's open

Roberta Kihle dishes up a couple of tacos for a hungry Granada High School student. High school students are given a choice between the planned meal for the day, and a la carte items such as salads, hamburgers and poorboy sandwiches.

Cafeteria lunches

Hotdogs make it — stews don't

Spaghetti and meatballs.

Mary Deutschman thought it would be a great idea for a school cafeteria lunch. What she didn't realize was what wonderful missiles meatballs make when launched with a spoon.

Mrs. Deutschman is food services director for the Livermore Valley Unified School District. The flying meatballs didn't faze the director, she just put it down to experience.

Her experience has paid off in a lunch program that caters to about 40 per cent of the district's elementary and junior high school students. Two high schools are also under her direction.

Four years ago only about 27 per cent of the younger students bought the hot lunches. Mrs. Deutschman credits the popularity increase with a change in the menu. "I got wise and decided to feed the children what they like and bring them in," she explained.

Mary Deutschman

'I got wise and decided to feed them what they like.'

She also said that with the increase in food prices parents "feel youngsters can get a good hot lunch" for the same money as bringing one from home. Elementary school lunches cost 50 cents, junior high school's are 55 cents and lunches at high schools run 60 cents.

Just because kids are getting what they like, Mrs. Deutschman pointed out they are not getting junk food. The lunch must fall in line with a state-mandated "Type A" lunch. That includes two ounces of protein, three-fourths cup of fruit or vegetable, a serving of bread and butter, and milk.

"I've finally decided if you give kids what they like to eat, it will go into their stomachs instead of the garbage cans," said the woman in charge of serving 3500 lunches each day.

Hamburgers, hotdogs, tacos and fishsticks rank high among the entrees students look forward to. Mrs. Deutschman added that "our kids are really salad eaters in this valley." She said if something is subsituted for salad, the kids complain.

"Fast foods have really taken over — it's what the kids are use to. I remember serving casseroles, but they won't eat them anymore. They don't like it if everything is lumped together," she explained.

High school students have an even more defined idea of what they will eat, and what they won't. For this reason Mrs. Deutschman said she's tried to provide a choice for them. "In addition to the type A lunch, they can buy a box lunch with a hamburger or poorboy and fruit and milk." Mrs. Deutschman also said that because so many students are weight conscious, a salad bar is available.

In addition to the 20 schools that have lunch service, two elementary schools, Fifth Street and Portola, serve hot breakfasts.

"The principals there requested it because so many students were coming to school hungry," explained Mrs. Deutschman. A typical 20-cent breakfast is scrambled eggs, toast, juice and milk.

"They come into us half asleep. They are hungry and they eat it. It's a good thing to see," she said.

Last year the district served 600,342 lunches with a total budget of $689,000. Twenty-eight per cent of those lunches were served to students free or at a reduced cost. About 80 per cent of the breakfasts were served free or at a reduced price.

Mrs. Deutschman said the district is reimbursed by state and federal funds for all lunches served. Still, prices continue to climb and a nickel increase in the lunches was needed this year.

"This year I had to ask for an increase in price. I hated to, but last year it was really a struggle to stay within the budget," she explained.

Much of what the district purchases comes from government surplus. "I try to utilize everything we can get." Other food is bought from the county store in Santa Rita which services many county institutions.

"Our biggest problem is storage. Because we are limited, we can't always buy in huge amounts," she said looking over an order for 56 cases of ground meat.

What do you like about being back in school?

Jennifer Palecki, 8, 3rd grade student: Reading. I like it because I like to read. I read some books this summer.

Misty Smith, 10, 5th grade student: Math, because I like it. It's fun. No, I don't mind the homework.

Greg Coe, 11, 6th grade student: Reading and history. It's the easiest. Besides, it's what I make the best grades in.

Anne Whitney, mother of three: Peace and quiet. This year there are two down and only one to go. I bake three times a week for school lunches — but I like to bake.

Laura LaViolette, 12, 7th grade student: It's fun, I like history. I like visiting friends and teachers.

Mark Whitney, 5, kindergardener: Recess. And I like where you have jobs to do inside the school.

David Whitney, 7, first grade student: Math, because it helps you in the higher grades.

Ricky Dowell, 11, 6th grade student: History and math. I like division and stuff like that. I like American history.

Big families: the secret of making seven school lunches at 6 a.m.

The Henderson family: eight plus one is enough

"My mom sometimes has trouble with names," laughs 15-year-old Jack Henderson. "She'll say, 'Uh, Kelley ... uh, Molly ... Aileen, will you come here?'"

Having trouble with names is only one of the unusual situations encountered by a family with nine children. Ann and John Henderson of Dublin know how it is — and they know the problems of seeing those kids, all of whom are under 15, back into school again.

"The kids are pretty independent," says Ann, who also teaches pottery with the Valley Communcity Service District. "In the mornings, I have breakfast going on a rotating basis. Pancakes are good for that."

At the start of school, says Ann, "It takes me two weeks to know everybody's schedule — when they are leaving for school, when they are coming home."

Mornings are the most difficult — and that comes as no surprise. Any family would have a bit of a problem if one group of kids left at 7 a.m., some left at 8 a.m. at some leave at 9:30.

"It's not bad at all," says Jack, "since we all get ready at different times." And, thank God, the family has three bathrooms. Otherwise, the traffic jam could be horrendous.

The most difficult times, says Ann with a perfectly straight face, is "every hour on the half hour." That's when "the kids are all leaving for school, and Julie can't find her shoe, or Eileen can't find her homework. It's good that they have different schedules. If they all left at the same time, I would collapse."

The kids, all of good humor, as is their mom, seem to love the large family situation.

"After a while, it only seems like we have three or four kids," says Kelley. "But I wonder how families with three kids get along. With other people, that seems like so many," adds Jack.

"I don't see how other people remember names," chimes in Aileen (or was that Molly? or Julie?).

As for keeping track of the Henderson names — and whereabouts — during schooltime, Ann says she's thinking of a system: "I'll get a bulletin board, and have them all write down where they are after school." The plan should solve any missing-kid problems, says Ann, "but only for the ones who can write, that is."

Ten little Hollcrofts, all under age 14

In a family of ten children, the problems of getting everyone back into the school routine can be doubled, tripled — and so on.

There's ten times the school lunches, teachers' meetings and calls for "Mom, I need a ride."

Think of the possibilities.

But Maureen Hollcroft and husband Robert of San Ramon seem to have no trouble presiding over a family of beautiful kids, all under 14 years old.

The family roster is truly remarkable: Claire, 14; Jim, 12; Ray, 11; Carolyn, 10; Tommy, 8; Michelle, 7; Patrick, 6; Celia, 4; Joe, 2 and (whew!) Mark, 9 months.

For those less courageous parents, it could be difficult. But Mrs. Hollcroft, by now a pro at the situation seem to be able to handle any one of the hundreds of major problems that daily come her way.

A few comments on back - to - school life with the tribe·

On after-school sports — "All the kids are involved, and all of them are quite talented in that respect. But mother is supposed to volunteer for everything, there's practices, transportation. The kids play one sport per season, and they stick to it. Otherise, it could get wild."

On fixing meals — "I don't think I know how to cook for two anymore. And there's no such thing as leftovers around here, either. The kids are pretty responsible about making their lunches the night before. And they like to fix their breakfast, too. Even my eight-year-old wants to make his own scrambled eggs."

On that age-old school problem, homework "My oldest one is a good, responsible student. The others see her doing her homework, and they'll follow suit rather than fight it. But sometimes, the boys are more prone to play ball. If I don't catch everybody the minute they come in from school, they might not get it done 'till 10 o'clock at night."

On the new math — "Hmmm....let's just say I find it difficult to explain sometimes. How do you try to make a second grader understand algebra? That's when I say to the older kids, 'Hey, help your brother out here.'"

Mrs. Hollcroft, a trim, attractive woman who seems as much in control of her breed as an executive planner, devotes a lot of time and concern about each and every kid's schoolwork.

She and her husband take on the challenge of seeing six elementary school teachers in one night with a grain of salt. "My husband and I split up on conference nights, and try to meet every teacher," she says. "But we know most of them anyway — our kids have usually had them before, somewhere along the way."

There are lots of things about a large family, says Mrs. Hollcroft, that she wouldn't trade for anything. "The kids are close. The older ones are constantly teaching new things, talking to the younger ones. That's a tool for learning."

And she says, parents of a large family "are forced to look at each child more objectively. There's no way you can be superprotective. The kids have to be self-sufficient, and learn to fight their own battles."

And speaking of battles — which do come up in any family, large or small — she says, "When they fight with each other, it can be fierce. But in a family this size, you can't hold a grudge. The kids get so used to always having company around here, that they just hate to be alone."

The main thing, she says, "is the amount of love."

Fighting mayor

Mayor Tirsell is, if nothing else, a gutsy gal. She works hard, believes in her cmmunity, fights like hell for home rule. While not always right, she is at least always evident.

She has been most evident recently in helping expose the "media blitz" which Harlan Geldermann unleashed, through his public relations agency, to woo the news media and the public to his New Town cause. Geldermann is entitled to make that push; the people are entitled to have their side given equal space and time. Without Helen Tirsell, we would wind up complaining to each other.

Perhaps all those who hammered Helen over the pipeline issue, over Mr. Leonard's tree and that downtown parking flap, would like to take a moment to call the mayor just once more.

"Thanks for fighting for Livermore and for home rule against the Geldertown forces, Helen. We need a few more sluggers like you."

When Mayor Tirsell was being hammered at those Monday night council sessions by the likes of Paul Tull, or the lovers of Leonard's Tree, many Livermore - watchers were inclined to say: "But she brings all that flack onto herself."

When Helen Tirsell takes on a major Bay Area television station for its misguided, and perhaps illegal, support of "Geldertown," then even her hometown critics must readjust their view of the woman.

Helen Tirsell is not your typical tea party hostess. She is tough, sometimes petulant, often abrasive. When she clashes with local citizens, the public and (let's face it) the press find Mayor Helen "vindictive."

When that same energy is turned onto a Channel 5 editorial which lends timely support for Geldermann's New Town, then the Valley must unite in praise for that woman. Even including the Valley's press.

Mori, taxes

It appears when Sacramento has a tough job to do, the tendency is to call on Assemblyman S. Floyd Mori. First there was that Farm Labor Board which Mori chairs, and then a series of committees climaxed by appointment to the all - powerful Ways and Means.

Now Mori is one of six legislators asked to bring about a two - house compromise from the complicated, controversial tax reform and school finance package. (Senator John Holmdahl, D - Castro Valley, is one of three Senators on that panel.)

Local constituents of Assemblyman Mori will recall his role as college professor, as a teacher of economics, and ten as council member for Pleasanton. We might now hope that Mr. Mori will also recall those roots as he plunges into the murky waters of tax relief and school finance equalization.

In any compromise, there must be give and take. Home owners and taxpayers of the suburban variety have begun to think they are always being taken, while liberal legislators give away all available "surplus funds." We have observed before that the $2.5 billion "surplus' which the legislature is now playing around with is in truth a "tax excess" ... too much money collected because the state's tax tables failed to keep step with inflation. Much of that excess was levied on middle income home owners.

What we need in Sacramento these days is a voice for moderation, for responsible taxation, and for fair play ... across all levels of income. Assemblyman Mori can be such a voice. He will never get a better opportunity to make himself heard than during these crucial committee talks on tax reform.

It wouldn't hurt if you dropped our representative a note of commendation, and of encouragement, just to let him know his suburban neighbors are thinking about him.

Air polluters

The Association of Bay Area Governments is taking on smog again, and we might all hope that the cure isn't worse than the disease.

"A score of new air pollution control measures, most of them controversial" is ABAG's own lead sentence for the announcement setting forth yet another review of smog by a "task force" chaired by Supervisor Dianne Feinstein of San Francisco.

Those of us who have put up with smog — much of it exported by the larger urban centers — might be happier if that task force were being headed by some one other than , a representative from super - clean San Francisco ... where air pollution is just another nuisance in the far - off suburbs.

Regardless of who chairs what study, it becomes evident that the nine - county Bay Area is running out of enemies to conquer in the air polluting business. The real enemy is the automobile, and that is a smog source which defies regional and even state control. Thus far, it is also doing a good job of defying the feds.

ABAG suggests three goals in this newest attack on smog: Reduce long distance auto commuting; Reduce auto trips by beefing up public transit; and, Increase the efficiency of transportation systems to avoid congestion.

Whatever else any of those proposals might accomplish, they will most certainly impact the suburbs, from whence originate most long - distance trips, and wherein public transit ould be most effective in reducing vehicular travel.

One way or another, the lady supervisor from San Francisco is going to have a lot to say about the future of our Valley and our people.

The week in retrospect

Valley volunteers

The spirit of volunteerism probably reaches its zenith in the autumn of the year.

When the kids are returning to school and schedules are getting back to normal, many of us feel a renewed surge of enthusiasm. Albeit the "final stretch" of the year — when those plans and goals of nine months prior have risen to confront us.

Volunteerism takes many forms, from participating in a project with the local school group to devoting several hours each week to those less fortunate.

Volunteer projects have increasingly involved schools and school groups for the simple fact things cost more nowadays. Hence the spaghetti feeds, raffles, and what-have-you.

We are no doubt joined by many school people when we say it would be nice if everyone, particularly parents of school-age children, took part in at least one activity during the school year.

No matter whether it be a special program, raising funds for a field trip, or helping develop that environmental play area.

But the spirit of volunteerism probably has its greatest affect in the total community. Where the need is not strictly limited to schools or school groups.

The Valley agency charged with meeting that need is the Valley Volunteer Bureau. The first week of October will mark the second anniversary of the VVB.

Betty Stallings, who has been with the bureau from the start as director, knows the problems and pitfalls of the day-to-day operation. First and foremost is the dedication to matching needs with volunteers.

To the hundreds of Valley residents who weekly call or drop by the VVB offices on Rose Street in Pleasanton, it may seem like a fairly routine task. In order to meet all the needs, a home office and funding is necessary.

Yes, it costs to run a volunteer operation. But to you the services are available without charge. The only "cost" to the volunteer is his or her time.

The Valley Volunteer Bureau, which has gained increasing acceptance as an "action" agency that gets things done while coordinating or assisting the efforts of others, needs continued support in order to exist.

A basic one, that we mentined earlier, is that of an office— for Mrs. Stallings and her volunteer staff, a mountain of necessary records, informational pamphlets and meeting areas.

On December 1, the Volunteer Bureau and the YMCA, which is also headquartered on Rose Avenue, will have to vacate the premises. Notice has been given by the City of Pleasanton.

The request here is that any one knowing of an office building, preferably with two spacious offices, that is easily accessible to the general public, get in touch with Mrs. Stallings or Nancy Cotton, president of the Valley Volunteer Bureau board, as soon as possible. The phone number is 462-3570 and the office hours at 287 Rose Ave. are 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Any assistance or "lead" would be appreciated.

The bureau's board of directors has ambitious plans for the coming months, with the goal of providing greater service to all residents of the Valley in need. With that in mind, the first week of October is being designated as Valley Volunteer Week, to mark the second anniversary of this active organization.

Valley Times

Comparatively new in Livermore, I've been inclined to disregard the local newspapers and have depended on outside publications for news and human interest items. This morning I took a really good look at Valley Times. It's excellent! I like the makeup of the front page, the writeups about interesting local persons and what they are doing, and the balance of space devoted to sports and special features. You also seem to have an efficient circulation department.

Best wishes.

Editor, The Times:

As a teacher at Foothill High School, I enjoyed the use of your newspaper via another teacher (Larry Moyer) who was receiving them. I would like to express my gratitude for the class set and would very much like to again ask your co-operation this school year.

I will be teaching a writing class in the English department and plan to use them to a great degree. I would appreciate 30 papers if possible, or as many as you can spare.

Thanks again!

LIGHTER TIMES

Following is my handbook called "Rules for Dealing with Journalists".

1)Always be first in reaching for the lunch and/or bar tab. In the old days, this was forbidden because publishers actually thought their reporters could be bought for the price of a lunch. Nothing could be further from the truth. I, for example, go for nothing less than an expenses paid vacation to the country of my choice. And that's just for spelling your name right.

2) If you are an attorney, remember to put your translator on the line before you phone a reporter.

3) If you are a politician, say everything off the record. You then will tell the truth and the reporter will break confidence and use it.

4) Never confuse a reporter with an editor. Editors are people who wear green eyeshades and stick pencils behind their ears. Reporters are the folks who told the editors where to stick their pencils. It is not the reporter's fault that an editor has a bad aim.

5) Never trust a reporter to quote you accurately. Every reporter is a frustrated poet and knows how to say it better than you do.

6) Never encourage your daughter or son to become a reporter. Not only does it increase the competition for jobs in this field, it will destroy the fabric of country by creating a society of alcoholic dreamers who have never done an honest day's work in their entire lives.

round the town

This has been a busy and exciting week at the White House.

President Carter was bubbling over that "signing pageant" which pledges himself and Gen. Omar Torrijos to a new treaty assuring us of peace on the Panama Canal. Forever. Or for as long as they both shall serve, or live; whichever ends first.

Sure, there are a few details still to resolve ... like Senate ratification in the United States, and convincing the Panamanian guerillas to remove their caches of explosives tucked along the canal's route.

But President Carter was able to look past all that this week, as he bounced around the White House, swapping small talk with leaders of 23 South American nations, and confiding in his aides the prospect of "nation - wide respect for Jimmy Carter as a leader ... at last."

"You're sure looking chipper this morning, Mr. President," says Bob Lipshutz, White House counsel, in greeting his boss. "Things going well for you?"

"Never better," Carter replied, humming a merry Georgian tune.

"You mean the Senate Banking Committee has finally stopped asking embarrassing questions about Bert Lance's overdrafts?"

"No," Carter advised Lipshutz, "and I really wish you'd learn to avoid bringing up bad news on a day when I am trying to be happy. It's bad for my smile ."

"Sorry, Mr. President," Lipshutz says, biting his lip. "Just what's making you so happy then? ... I know! It's the Black Caucus ... they've agreed to stop talking about 40 percent unemployment among young black Americans until after the 1980 elections."

"No, dammit," the president says, testily. "It is not the Black Caucus and it is not the Senate Banking Committee which make me so happy. It is in fact the Panama Canal Treaty! In case you've forgotten, Lipshutz, this is the week when the dictator ... er, President of Panama and I sign the treaty that will be witnessed by the leaders of 23 other South American nations. What do you think of that!"

"Superlative, sir," Lipshutz says. "And that means from henceforth and forevermore there will be peace along the Canal ... provided of course some new Panamanian dictator ... er, President, or one - third of the United States Senate doesn't choose to throw out the treaty and start all over again."

"When one is rewriting history, one does not trouble himself with such details," Carter reminds his counsel. But then, quickly smiling again, "I can't imagine a single thing destroying the happy mood of this week."

"Yes sir," Lipshutz agrees, "not even that business about Taiwan trying to establish a beach head in Plains."

"Taiwan? Plains?? What are on earth are you talking about?" the president demands.

"A silly thing, really," Lipshutz advises his chief. "Seems like the Taiwan government has adopted Plains, Georgia as a 'Sister City' and they've been shipping the exotic assis plants to Plains for some time now as a gesture of good faith."

"So what's wrong with that?" the president demands.

"Well, turns out there was quite a bit of Taiwan dirt still clinging to the roots of those exotic assis plants when they were shipped from the Republic of China to Georgia ... and so now ... (this is really funny, Mr. President) ... the Taiwan government is claiming rights to those portions of Plains soil which also contain Taiwan dirt. Unfortunately, some of your closest advisors agree with the Taiwanese."

"What!" Carter demands. "Tell me the name of any idiot American who would agree to giving the Republic of China rights to our soil just because they have some silly Taiwan plants here!"

"Well," Lipshutz reports, "Ambassador Andrew Young for one."

"Andy Young is a brilliant and humanitarian man who has been known to get things screwed up," Carter explains.

"And Miz Lillian, for another," Lipshutz adds.

"My mother?!" Carter asks, incredulously. "You mean my own dear mother is one of those who thinks Taiwan has permanent rights to Georgian soil just because of a few assis plants?"

"Yes sir," Lipshutz says, nervously. "In fact she's chairperson of the Plains Committee for Sister Citying with Taiwan. Miz Lillian says it's the only way to go."

"Well," Carter acknowledged, "I have always said there is room for free and open exchange of ideas in the Carter government. I certainly wouldn't want to prevent the people of Plains from extending the hand of friendship to our good friends in Taiwan."

"Does that mean you will not oppose the Republic of China's claim to Georgian soil?" Lipshutz asks.

"It means they have 24 hours to get their assis out of Georgia,", the president asserted, "before I send in the Sixth Army."

Anita's blow

It's hard to get a suntan when a hurricane is approaching.

But three of us tried bronzing the bods at South Padre Island, Texas two weeks ago as Anita cavorted in the Gulf of Mexico spewing rain squalls ahead of her.

South Padre Island is four miles off the Texas coast. It begins near Brownsville and ends at Corpus Christi. It is one of my favorite places on earth.

Last week was vacation time — planned for months — rooms reserved for a three day stay at The Tiki on South Padre.

The rest of the time was to be spent with my family in McAllen, Texas which is 80 miles inland. It is eight miles from the Old Mexico border.

Thanks to Anita's antics our island stay was aborted after a day and a half.

We knew she was wandering around. But hurricanes are so erratic not even weather bureaus can predict long-range movements of those windy whirligigs.

We arrived at the island Tuesday, Aug. 30. The day was fair and hot. Some storm surf was showing in the Gulf but it wasn't anything too serious. The undertow was stronger than usual.

So it was on with the swim suits and tally ho to the beach! The key word was Relax — you only have a week plus two weekends to unwind. Warm Gulf water soothed our work-fevered brows and all that jazz.

Waves swirled and pounded around us. One member dubbed the surf the best Jacuzzi in the world.

Later, we plopped on the beach, built sand castles and strolled along the beach collecting seashells. Sunburn sneaked up on us. Some instinct warned me if I was to get any pictures I'd better do it that day.

I took shots of the undeveloped part of the island so I would have a record of how the whole island used to be. It used to be one of the last bastions of peace and beauty untrammeled by mankind.

I took shots of the developed portion whee high-rise hotels and condominiums portend the progressive fate of South Padre Island. Developers are turning the island into a mini-Miami Beach.

Each time I go to Padre I see mor developemnt. Beach houses, mobile home parks, fast - food restaurants, shop - quick stores are rapidly replacing stretches of sand, sea-grape vines and tranquility that have been a part of Padre Island since pirates used to come ashore and bury treasure there.

By nightfall, the sun, sea air and a good meal nudged us toward restful sleep.

Four hours later, Anita's avant-garde shoved us into acute wakefulness. She slammed a rainstorm at Padre Island complete with frills of eardrum popping thunder and blinding lightning. Her combination perpendicular flash flood and light show lasted 45 minutes.

By then, there was no beach. Waves were lapping at the sea wall in front of The Tiki.

Dawn's light illuminated a scene of storm surf plus, at low tide, beached pieces of ships sunk long ago and resurrected by Anita.

Between rain squalls we stood outside and watched the spectacle. Once the tide went out long enough for us to take one more walk on the beach. The undertow was too strong to risk taking a dip in the water.

Residents and store owners began boarding up windows. Boat owners took their crafts to safer harbors or pulled them inland.

Weather reports on TV and radio were given every few minutes warning evacuation of the island was imminent if Anita continued on her present course.

By noon the jig was up. We left before the mass exodus began over the one causeway connecting the island with the mainland.

Back in McAllen we waited in rain and gusty winds for Anita's full gale force of 150 miles an hour to hit. It never did.

The fickle lady changed courses and headed southward toward Mexico. We were relieved for us but sad for those who bore Anita's brunt.

It was still a good vacation. Being in Texas and on South Padre Island even for a little while is worth the trip.

But it is also fun to work on getting a California tan.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm a homosexual and have been living with the same man for 15 years. He's a brilliant teacher and will be moving to a university in the Midwest. I'm an artist and can work almost anywhere so I don't mind making the move with him. What troubles me is that as a native Midwesterner, I know that in that section of the country there's less tolerance toward sexual behavior that doesn't fit what's considered "normal." I've tried to warn my friend that he may have to go back into the closet if he wants to keep his job. He says I don't realize there have been changes in people's thinking in the past decade. He has more faith than I and I worry for him. — S.B.

DEAR S.B.: The results of a national opinion poll by Indiana University's Instiute for Sex Research would tend to confirm your fears. There is still a tremendous fear and prejudice about homosexuality.

For instance, two-thirds of the 3,000 adults polled regarded homosexuality as "very obscene and vulgar." Thirty-four per cent would put homosexuals either in jail or on probation. Sixty-five per cent thought of them as sick and badly in need of a treatment program.

The vast majority endorsed job discrimination against homosexuals, especially in the clergy, in medical practice, in teaching, and in government service. About 80 per cent didn't want to associate with them. Nearly half were willing to brand homosexuality as "a corruption that can cause the downfall of a civilization." According to psychologists Eugene Levitt and Albert Klassen, Jr., who conducted the survey, they tended to be white residents of the Midwest or South.

Perhaps your friend should consider this information before making any firm decisions.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Our 16-year-old son seems to be a well-adjusted, healthy young man, but he worries us because he bites his nails when he's concentrating. — C.N.

DEAR C.N.: A British professor and expert in nervous habits, Dr. D.G. Williams feels that nailbiting doesn't necessarily mean a person's neurotic. He found a number of emotionally stable students who routinely tugged at their hair, chewed fingers and nails or whispered little messages to themselves when concentrating.

Concentration of manipulation in head and hand regions suggest, he says, that activities are performed, at least partly, because of the feedback stimulation they provide. Men seem to be a bit more active in the squirming, biting habits than women, he noted.

Nail-biting in itself can't be regarded as a sign of emotional disturbance. Howver, a University of California study found that many nailbiters were filled with pent-up resentment and hostility resulting from inner tension.

I try to talk to him about why he does this. Ask if he's aware of any anger or resentment that he's bottling up. If he is, encourage him to talk it out.

Try to find out how he feels about failure. He may be repressing fears about this. Let him go at his own pace.

SOAP

Sometimes it seems like a bother to use soap when you wash. But soap really does make you cleaner than plain water does.

Water cannot penetrate grease and dirt by itself. Water alone merely stands on grease or rolls off.

When you wash your hands with soap and water, the soap helps wash away the dirt by lowering the water's surface tension.

The soap particles gather at the water's surface and force the water to spread out, making the water wetter (this same action helps form bubbles and suds).

With surface tension reduced, water can penetrate into the small hollows and valleys of your skin more completely to loosen the dirt.

Besides making the water wetter, the soap breaks up the grease and dirt particles and "pulls" them away from your skin.

Then the soap holds dirt particles in the water so that they can be rinsed away, leaving your skin clean.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have had trouble with diverticulosis since 1976. I have made up my mind that I am going to try the bran treatment.

I am on a low residue diet, but can't use wax beans or tomato puree because they cause gas. I have a good bowel habit as I take a pill after each meal, but I am thinking of cutting this down as I think they are too strong.

DEAR READER — Most people can add bulk to their diet without any special instructions. Just start eating whole wheat bread instead of bread made with white flour, use a bowl of cereal a day that contains bran, either Bran Buds or 40 per cent Bran Flakes, or any other bran cereal.

Some people may find that causes too much gas. They will need to start gradually and perhaps just switch bread first and then gradually add the bran cereals. You should expect some gas problems for at least three weeks after switching to bran.

I am not sure what kind of pill you are taking three times a day. If it is a chemical laxative, that is not a good idea.

Chemical laxatives are very harsh on the colon and result in a laxative habit.

Individuals who must use a laxative would be better off using a simple bulk expander. Metamucil is a good example. Some people who have too much gas or have other problems that make using bran difficult may tolerate bulk substances such as Metamucil. These inert substances simply expand with moisture and form a gel-like substance. The bulk improves colon function in some just as the bulk from cereal fiber does.

Studies that show whether inert bulk laxatives or cereal fiber are better, are hard to come by. There doesn't seem to be all that much difference.

The theory is based on the idea that the tubular colon is lined with muscles. These must contract rhythmically to move the food residue along. If there is not enough bulk in the diet the muscular tube overcontracts, causing spasm. The spasm leads to constipation, irritable or spastic colon and pain. When the bulk that you would get if you ate a natural diet with unrefined cereals is added to the diet, many people develop normal bowel function again.

Sept. 11, 1977

Don't be afraid to try out new ventures and enterprises this coming year. Projects of this type could be the ones that produce the most for you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't let early stumbling blocks hamper your pursuit of the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. Your luck improves as the day grows older.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you request a favor of an old friend today, don't question his or her modus operandi. They may function differently than you, but will be more successful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov.22) Try to have a broad spectrum to your ambitions today. If there's some way you can let others in on your plans, you have better chances for success.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Look for the simplest, most direct ways to gain your goals today. Luck and ease of operation are the keys to outstanding achievement.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There's an old saying that everything happens for the best. I know it sounds corny, but this really applies to you today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be fair, but if you're negotiating something today, drive a hard bargain. It's important not to make unnecessary concessions.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Going a few steps extra for someone deserving will win you a valuable ally today. This is probably a person who has influence and clout.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you're having a good time today and feel like continuing the merriment, invite the crowd to your place. You'll have more fun.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't let business and commercial things take up all of your time today. Seek some light and carefree diversion this evening.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If there's something you hope to gain today, your chances of getting it are excellent. Hang in there. Keep charging until the whistle blows.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll turn people off today if you're too materially oriented or self-seeking. Just try to relax and have fun.

LEO (July 23-Aug.22) The response to a favor you did for a friend may have seemed unappreciated at the time. Today you may be rewarded in excess of your expectations.

Jim: "We get so many letters about the Blackwood convention that we really ought to devote some more articles to slam bidding and the proper use of this fine convention."

Oswald: "Here is an example of its abuse. A Canadian reader wanted to know how he could have reached the lay down six-spade contract. His bidding is shown in the box."

Jim: "North violated the first rule for when not to use Blackwood. You just should not use Blackwood when you have a worthless doubleton in any suit not bid by your partner."

Oswald: "The scientific bidders would start with a three-diamond bid by North. South would rebid three spades, North four clubs and South six clubs. He would like his clubs and his singleton heart whereupon North would close the bidding at six spades."

Jim: "There is also a fairly simple, but elegant way to get to six. North bids five spades right away. This bid asks partner to cue bid if he can take the first heart, to bid six spades if he can take the second one and to pass if he is looking at two quick heart losers."

Inside China today

Tourism in People's Republic

By DEAN S. LESHER
Publisher

Perhaps you would like to go to the People's Republic of China as an ordinary tourist, the same as a visit to any other country in the world. Is it possible to do so?

The answer is yes. There are a number of tours that go to Mainland China.

Unfortunately, the number of people able to make these tours is rather strictly limited because of the lack of modern hotel accommodations in the interior and even in the largest cities of China. All tours in China are handled by the China Travel Service, a government agency.

Japan Airlines has a printed outline of a tour of China taking 21 days and covering most of the interesting cities of the eastern part of China. These include Peking, Nanking, Soochow, Hangchow, Shanghai, Canton and perhaps one or two others. This tour should be delightful if it can be arranged.

A number of cruise ships stop for four days at Canton in the southwestern part of China and at Shanghai in the east - central part of China. These two cities have enough hotel accommodations to take care of even large cruise ships.

Perhaps the best equipped city in China from the standpoint of modern hotel facilities is Canton. This is because 20,000 people go to Canton for 30 days in the spring and 30 days in the fall to attend the Canton Exposition and Fair. On exhibit there are all of the products China makes available for export.

Over 20,000 tradespeople from all over the world are invited to visit the fair and to make their purchases. Only those with official invitations are permitted to attend.

Because of this huge influx of visitors from other countries for the periods of April 15 to May 15 and of Oct. 15 to Nov. 15, Canton has built a number of modern hotels which are open only during the days when the exposition and fair is open. In addition to this, there is a huge hotel directly across from the exposition grounds which appears to contain about 1,000 rooms. It is multi - story and built around a large quadrangle of grass, trees and flowers. This is the hotel where most visitors are housed.

I have been told that 500 cruise ship passengers have been housed in this hotel during the four days that they are permitted to visit in and near Canton.

These visitors are taken on a regular tourist course, including the handicraft factories, a commune and various other points of interest in and around Canton. There are so many places involved that a four day visit should be brimful of activities.

Some of those who stop at Shanghai are permitted to stay more than four days and even to go to Peking, the capital of China.

Since many of you may be thinking now or later of visiting China, perhaps you might be interested in a bird's eye view of the tourist attractions in the various parts of China you are likely to visit.

Since it is the capital and perhaps the most interesting city in China, let us start with Peking, not only a political center but also an economic and cultural center.

Peking has a population of about 7 million including the suburbs. Peking means "northern capital" and thus you are aware that it is located in the northern part of China.

Peking is considered an industrial city because of the number of factories which produce machine tools, iron and steel products, railroad cars, electronics, textiles and agricultural machinery. It is a center for food processing and for making clothing and wearing apparel.

The first attraction of considerable importance as you drive from the Peking airport to the Peking Hotel is the great square known as the Tienanmen Square. This is where Chairman Mao first raised the flag of the People's Republic of China. The square is huge, containing almost 100 acres.

On one side of the square is the Great Hall of the People. Next to it is the new mausoleum built to hold the body of Chairman Mao. Today is the official opening of this mausoleum with its crystal sarcophagus containing the body of Mao.

On the other side of the square are the Museum of Chinese History and the Museum of the Chinese Revolution. The square is also adjacent to the Forbidden City, the former palaces of the emperors of China.

The Great Hall of the People is a tremendous building that was erected in 10 months time with a crash program of construction. It contains a huge auditorium seating 10,000 where the Congress of the Communist Party meets at irregular intervals to select a leader and to choose the members of the ruling Central Committee.

The Great Hall contains a banquet room which will seat 5,000. It also includes a large theater and an immense corridor dominated by a larger than lifesize statue of Chairman Mao.

Every province of China has decorated one major room in the Great Hall of the People.

In addition to this, there are offices occupied by the ruling members of the Communist Party and the government. It is in one of these offices or halls where any foreign visitor is taken to meet, to be briefed by and to interview the leaders of the various ministries and of the Central Committee.

From the Square, you pass through the Tienanmen Gate to go to the Imperial Palace, formerly called the Forbidden City. It received its name from the fact that only those invited by the emperors or employed by the emperors could enter.

The Forbidden City covers approximately 250 acres. The original buildings were started in 1840 and different emperors added various temples from then until 1924.

Within the Forbidden City are many palaces, halls, gates and pavilions. We were told that there are 9,000 major rooms within the Forbidden City. There are hundreds of buildings.

Most buildings are reached by climbing 20 to 24 steps, so that a visit to the Forbidden City is an endurance test.

In fact, if you plan to visit China, get into excellent shape physically, to climb the endless steps and walk the many miles you will cover each day.

The palaces contain relics of the past including clothing, furniture, utensils, jewelry, carved jade and other objects of art. In one, we saw a piece of jade weighing 9 tons which took several years to carve into its present shape. There were many other huge carvings of ivory, jade and previous stones.

One could spend weeks visiting the Forbidden City and not see all of it.

One of the first places you are taken after arriving in Peking and getting some rest is to the Great Wall of China.

The portion of the wall nearest to Peking is about 30 miles away at the base of mountains. The wall itself is 22 feet high, 18 feet wide at the top and 22 feet wide at the base.

The top is thus wide enough for 2 lanes of traffic. However, the grades are so steep that it is not conceivable that much traffic could move along the wall very far. In fact, the grades are so steep that hand rails are placed along the sides to enable people to descend these steep grades without falling.

The wall originally stretched for a distance of over 4,000 miles. The exact distance is not known because in certain sections, there were several parallel walls.

The wall was originally built to keep out the barbarians and to protect the Chinese. Genghis Khan, however, was able to force his way across the wall and lead his Mongols to invade China.

The wall was started about 2,500 years ago, making it before the birth of Christ. Major construction on the wall took place during the Chou Dynasty, about 1100 to 700 BC. Much of it was completed during the Tang Dynasty, 600 to 900 AD.

The wall fell into great disrepair in many sections, and the portion you are taken to see near Peking, originally built in 1340, has recently been completely rebuilt.

The Great Wall of China is considered to be one of the eight wonders of the world. The U.S. astronauts said that this wall was the only man made structure that they could sight and identify from the moon and from outer space.

The wall itself is built of granite, rock and some bricks. There are two walls on the outside and the center part is filled in with rubble of various kinds, covered on top with granite blocks.

The wall has watch towers, arch gateways and ramps leading on and off. It is quite a tourist attraction and is one of the sites that every visitor to China must see.

Near the Great Wall are the Ming tombs. These are the tombs where 13 emperors were buried in a rectangular area containing several square miles.

The road leading to the Ming tombs is lined on both sides by huge stone figures of various animals. There are 24 white stone animals in various poses as well as 12 statues of men, all made of white stone.

You visit one of these excavated tombs, passing first through a museum where the valuable relics have been collected and placed on display. These include clothing, crowns, jewelry of all kind and various items the emperors had buried with them.

Within the tombs themselves are beautiful porcelain jars in which oil was kept for use by the deceased.

Back in Peking, your tour will include other fascinating sights in addition to the Great Hall of the People, Mao's Mausoleum, the museums and the Forbidden City.

You will inquire about the thousands of one room mud and brick huts which line the major streets of the city. You will be told that they are earthquake shelters where families will go if a major earthquake strikes Peking. You will be told that the area north of Peking is subject to many earthquakes and that Peking feels some of these tremors.

What you will not be told (because people are not aware of it) is that the soil in and around Peking is a heavy clay without the advantage of rock formations. This is established by failure to strike rock while excavating for the huge bomb shelters underlying Peking and its suburbs.

When clay is dry, it is stable. When it becomes wet, it is less stable. Thus, earthquakes during rainy weather shake the earth for miles and do major damage in lives and buildings.

You may be fortunate enough to be taken into a portion of the bomb shelters and to learn that 4 million people can be housed and live there for weeks. There are entrances into these bomb shelters from many stores and buildings.

You will be both delighted and puzzled by the subway system that extends for 22 miles under Peking and has 14 stations. The stations rival in beauty those in Moscow. Many of them have walls of varied colored marble. They have long, steep, fast moving escalators to move people from the surface to the trains and to return them to the surface.

The subway trains are modern, comfortable and smooth riding. They are exceptionally noisy, due to the small amount of air between them and the walls to allow the noise to diffuse. The noise troubles the Chinese because it indicates a defect in planning and building.

Despite this, they are very proud that they designed and built the stations and the system without any outside help.

Just as you cannot see Peking in one day, so can you not cover the major attractions, even so briefly, in one column.

BART marks service start anniversary

Today marks the fifth anniversary of service startup by the Bay Area Rapid Transit District.

An entity for some 15 years previous, BART's pre-service days were dominated by continual cost overruns, equipment problems and a festering tug-of-war between east and west bay interests — as reflected at the board level.

But with the advent of service five years ago today, new problems came to the fore accompanied two years later by the foundations for "political" strife. The latter came about after the legislature's mandate in 1973 that future BART boards be elective.

From the 1974 elections came most of the present day directors, including the iconoclastic Valley representative Robert Allen.

In exclusive interviews earlier this week, Allen and George Silliman, the latter one of the original directors, reviewed the 20-year history of Bay Area Rapid Transit.

The consensus one must draw is that never has a transportation system become so controversial and so frequently criticized as BART— at least in the Western United States.

BART was formed as a district in November of 1957, as the result of a Bay Area Transit Commission.

Silliman, a Newark resident, was one of the original 16 selected to form the board. The district was formed with representation from five counties — Alameda, Contra Costa, San Francisco, San Mateo, and Marin. The latter two were to drop out later.

Alameda was given four positions on the board with two each to be appointed by the Board of Supervisors and the Mayors Conference of that time.

The four included Silliman, Clair W. MacLeod of Piedmont (the first board president), Arnold C. Anderson of Castro Valley, and Sherwood Swan of Oakland.

Other directors and their counties were:

H.L. Cummings, Marvin A. Joseph, and Harry L. Morrison, Jr., Contra Costa; Adrien J. Falk, who was to become highly influential in district matters in following years, Arthur J. Dolan, Jr., Allan E. Charles, and Thomas Gray, San Francisco; John C. Beckett, the first vice-president, and Thorpe J. DeLasaux of Marin; A.J. Bertini, Thomas F. Casey, Jr., and Joseph G. Hunter of San Mateo County.

The first general manager of BART was John M. Peirce and the first chief engineer, Kenneth M. Hoover.

Peirce served until 1962 when, at his urging, he stepped down to take the duties of finance director with the district.

The board elevated William R. Stokes, previously an Oakland Tribune reporter and director of information for the district, to the top position. Though he had handled the duties of assistant to Peirce, Stokes began the job with little technical and engineering expertise.

The latter as well as the interminable difficulties with builders of the rail cars were to harass Stokes and the board for years to come.

Silliman, the senior BART director in point of service (1957 to 1974) before losing a bid to be elected almost three years ago, was instrumental in the fight to get the first line opened all the way through to Fremont.

Until he began a thorough lobbying campaign, directors had been inclined to build the rail as far as Hayward.

But all the while Silliman and his fellow directors were trying to get an ultra-modern, high-speed transit line off the drawing boards, internal conflicts were developing.

Not the least of these centered around San Francisco director Adrien Falk. A hard-driving, crusty supporter of west bay interests, Falk was generally acknowledged to have Stokes' "ear" from the early days.

It was at least through Falk's persistence that the theory of "all lines lead to downtown San Francisco" became a cynical byword amongst East Bay and south county interests.

But the final routing and number of stations tends to indicate that, in the final analysis, San Francisco has not benefited out of proportion.

The east-west agitation remains today, though taking more subtler forms as Livermore resident Allen could attest to. This includes attempts to place lavish sculpture and other works of art in the main Oakland and downtown Francisco stations.

Though he was virtually ignored from the moment he was sworn in as a board member, Allen has been a major influence on BART administration and his fellow directors.

He has served as a self-appointed fiscal watchdog and was instrumental in gathering data to substantiate expense account abuses by former San Francisco director Elmer Cooper.

But prior to Allen, if there was in deed a "conscience" of the BART board, it would have had to be Silliman.

A businessman and mayor of Newark, Silliman anchored the south county effort to make sure BART provided burgeoning Fremont, Newark and Hayward with service equal to or superior to other parts of the east and west bay areas.

But these efforts and those of other board members were met with considerable dissatisfaction. The district, according to Silliman, was three years late in starting service and cost overruns and adminstrative expense led to cynical public reaction and a generally hostile media.

Silliman said the delay in startup of service was caused in large part by the comprehensive engineering plan, which took five years to finalize.

"From 57 to 62 we had the time to draw up a complete engineering plan, along with cost estimates for the rail system. But the plan and any amendments had to be approved by individual cities within the district, the five counties ... plus we had to deal with state, and federal authorities and the state Toll Bridge Authority," notes Silliman.

"We spent a great deal of time on a feasibility study for placing a second deck of rails across the Golden Gate to tie in Marin County," adds Silliman. "Then when we took the plans to the Golden Gate Bridge Authority they turned thumbs down on the plan." This triggered Marin County's exit from the district.

Then San Mateo County supervisors voted to leave the district, late in the 1957-62 engineering plan phase. Silliman says this left little time to redesign plans for just a three-county system.

But if the district had already dug deep into the public treasury by then, they went through the bottom with the transbay tube. This billion dollar program, however, was passed by a narrow vote of the electorate in the three counties in 1962.

A subscriber to the concept of mass transportation, Silliman participated in the BART extension study of 1972-73.

From the study came plans for rail routings to the Livermore-Amador Valley.

Transbay tube

One of the greatest engineering feats in modern-day Bay Area history took place during the late 1960s and early 70s when the transbay tube was constructed under San Francisco Bay. The actual corridors in which BART trains run were built at Bethlehem Shipyards and floated into place (as pictured above). Work in completing the tube, which permitted BART to extend service from the East Bay all the way through San Francisco to Daly City, took the better part of a decade. Service through the tube was begun in 1974, two years after the initial BART line from Oakland to Fremont was opened. Prior to opening of the tube, the only public transit line linking the Valley and San Francisco was Greyhound Lines. Valley residents may now take a BART feeder bus to Hayward and continue their trip on BART rail to other East Bay and West Bay points.

BART: Opening day

On the opening day of rail line service by BART five years ago today, then-general manager Bill Stokes, left, and board member George Silliman, right, were present to welcome U.S. Secretary of Transportation Volpe. Initial service linked Fremont, Union City, Hayard, and San Leandro with Oakland.

BART & Valley

service was started to transport riders from Valley points to Hayward, Walnut Creek and Bay Fair.

But Allen doesn't believe the Valley will see a rail line here much before 1990 if ever.

In a discussion of contemporary BART problems and prospects, Allen said earlier this week that no work can be done on the proposed spur from Bay Fair to the Valley until Highway 580 is complete. The time table for 580 completion, according to Allen, is 1985.

Allen, in fact, believes that unless the astronomical cost of laying rail all the way to Livermore can be cut, an alternative would be to bring the line out as far as the Pleasanton Fairgrounds and avoid the costly undergrounding through Pleasanton and line along Stanley.

A daily commuter via BART bus and rail to his job with Southern Pacific in Oakland, Allen is concerned that the salaries of upper echelon personnel will cut into maintenance of rolling stock and planning for future extensions.

He believes, though, that the Valley must be served by modern and dependable transportation.

The question is whether the public can afford it and would support it.

The urban strategy

OAKLAND — There are many good tools, some of them innovative, some of them already existing, to put Governor Brown's proposed urban strategy into effect, according to Alameda County Supervisor John George.

George, who participated in a panel discussion with Oakland Mayor Lionel Wilson and other minority community leaders on the urban strategy plan last week, told The Times that employment would be one of the big pluses in the plan.

"One of the things that we have to develop is a rehabilitation industry," said George. "We can develop and train our inner city youth in apprenticeship programs. And when I talk about inner city, I mean Hayward and Fremont, too."

But it takes more than labor to rehabilitate old houses and encourage more business and industry in the inner city.

The capital investment ought to come from Alameda County pension funds and other treasury money, said George. He even has thrown out the idea of forming an Alameda County Bank, a public bank which, among other things, would encourage investment in the inner city.

The closest George has come to any success with these ideas has been budging Alameda County Tax Collector Frank Krause stnding s from his initial refusal to take county money out of any banks that practice redlining of neighborhoods.

Redlining, so named because of red pencil lines on maps around entire neighborhoods, is the practice by which banks refuse to lend money to homeowners simply because of the neighborhood.

The banks feel that homes in such neighborhoods are bad risks. They have a track record for defaulted payments and the Federal Housing Administration has taken them over in many cases.

Krause's initial reaction was to tell George, and his allies in United Neighbors in Action, that if they have any proof of redlining, they should take it to legal counsel. But after another meeting with the group, Krause has agreed to take county funds out of such banks where possible. It's still a live issue and George will pursue it further, he said.

George is cognizant of the many vacant homes in Oakland which have been repossessed by FHA for mortgage payment failures. He feels they can be reoccupied and revitalized under something called "urban homesteading."

"It works like the old land homesteading 100 years ago," said George. "There the government gave you 100 acres if you lived on it and worked the land. In this program, the person would make a commitment to live in the house for five years. In exchange, you get a loan to rehabilitate the house and there is no down payment involved. It can come out of community development funds."

Some conservatives have criticized the "urban strategy" plan as socialism because the state becomes involved with it through various financing mechanisms that are unconventional.

Asked about this George said, "Some sort of partnership between public and private sector could be worked out. We are moving toward capitalism for the suburbs and socialism for the inner cities. If it's not profitable for private developers to do it, then it means we have to find a subsidized way to do it."

Section 8, a lease and purchase housing plan run by the federal government, amounted to such a subsidy. It was not used much, though, because the allotments for fair market prices were inadequate, said George.

Perhaps 10 years ago there was much talk about bringing more minorities into the suburbs. That seems to have died out now. Have blacks found suburban racism insurmountable or are they just more interested in improving the inner city where they historically resided, we asked George.

"Some of both," replied George, who is the county's first black supervisor. "Oakland has a nice variety of housing. It's well built and there is a wide diversity of neighborhoods in Oakland. You don't get that in Fremont, for example.

"And, like anyone else, blacks don't want to put up with a long commute in areas where they are isolated. There's no community life out there (the Valley and Fremont); no warp and woof. Oakland is sassy and interesting."

Health Center diabetes course

SAN RAMON — "Understanding Diabetes," the first of a six-session college course, will kickoff this year's monthly free Health Dialogue '77-78 series at the Family Medical Center.

The program will be presented Sept. 15 at 7 p.m. in the lecture room of the Center, located at 9260 Alcosta Blvd.

Diabetes, the nation's third-ranking cause of death, is increasing at a rate of about 6 per cent per year. An individual's chance of becoming diabetic doubles for every 20 per cent of excess body weight.

An estimated one-half of the Americans who are diabetics are unaware that they have the disease.

Among the topics to be covered in the six-session course will be food selection and preparation, foot and skin care, testing, insulin mangagement, oral medications, prevention and management of complications, special care needed during illness, community resources, and factors which may influence a diabetic at work or during travel.

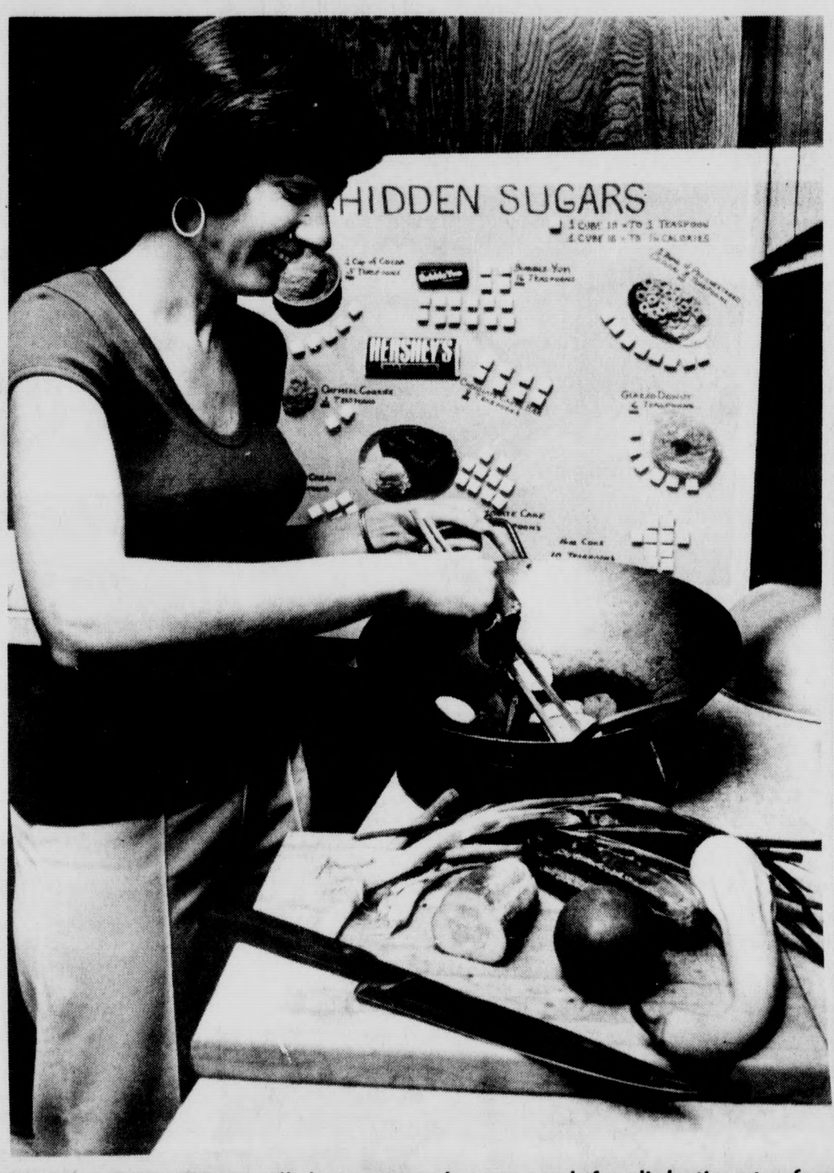
At the Sept. 15 program, Richard Reitz, M.D., a specialist in endocrinology and metabolic diseases, will present an introductory talk on adult and juvenile diabetes and the current research being done in the field. Betty Klamp, a registered dietician, will discuss hidden sugars and fats in the diet and give a cooking demonstration.

Information will be presented through the use of lectures, films, demonstrations, and class discussions. The new low fat exchange lists will be available.

Barabara Johnson, registered dietician, is the coordinator for the course. Among the health professionals participating, in addition to those peaking at the first session, include L.M. Pfefer, M.D., internal medicine; Grace Devnich, M.D., general practitioner; and Carolyn Dahl, R.N.

Those attending the program who wish to continue the course may register that evening. The class is offered on a credit - no credit basis. Those completing the series for credit will receive one semester unit of college credit.

There is no charge for California residents taking the class. Those living outside of Contra Costa County will need a permit from their local community college district in order to register. Permits will be available at the first session of the class. Registration is also being taken at Diablo Valley College.



Dietician Betty Klamp will demonstrate how to cook for diabetics at a free course entitled "Understanding Diabetes."

Grizzlies show 'em how it's done

California High, last year's East Bay Athletic League cellar-dweller with an 0-7 record, became the only EBAL team to win a game in the first weekend of play by trouncing Benicia High, 28-6 yesterday at th school's new stadium.

If Cal's performance against the Panthers is any indication of things to come, other league teams would do well to take this year's Grizzlis very seriously.

Cal running back Chris Miller scored three touchdowns and gained 145 yards rushing to spark the Grizzlies' offense, while the Cal defense held Benicia to only 83 yards in total offense.

The game got off to a less-than-auspicious start with five fumbles and four penalties in the first 12 plays. Three of those fumbles were by Benicia quarterback Mike MitcMell, who would not have been playing if senior Shawn Murphy hadn't broken his hand in practice.

As a result of tMe new, inexperienced quarterback, the timing between Mitchell and his backs on handoffs and pitchouts was often shakey, and the Panthers' wing-T offense was never able to get off the ground.

Mitchell's fumble on his own 11-yard line with 10 minutes left in the first quarter set up Cal's first score. On tMe vry first play after the Grizzlies' fumble rcovery Miller scored on an 11-yard delay up the middle. Robert Perry followed with the first of his four perfect conversion kicks to make the score 7-0.

With a third-and-ten situation on Cal's 30-yard line and time running out in the first stanza, Miller pulled off the most spectacular play of the afternoon. After taking a handoff, Miller started up the middle, broke two tackles, veered to the right sideline and outsprinted what seemed to be the entire Benicia defense for a 70-yard touchdown.

Miller picked up his third touchdown late in the third quarter, shortly after Cal's Alan Doel recovered a Mitchell fumble at Benicia's 22-yard line. Tyler Laurie picked his way for nine yards off tackle and Benicia was penalized five yards for delay of game to set up Miller's score, an 8-yard quick opener run.

Benicia scored its only touchdown midway through the fourth quarter — a score that could hardly be blamed on Cal's defense.

Grizzlie quarterback Tom Woodmansee gave up the ball on a fumble at his own ten to put the Panthers in position for Mitchell's three-yard, fourth-down touchdown pass under heavy pressure to halfback Tony McIntosh.

Cal drove 72 yards for its final touchdown late in the fourth period. Key plays for the Grizzlies were a tackle-braking 16-yard run up the middle by Laurie and two 15-yard penalties assessed against Benicia.

A holding penalty slowed the Grizzlies progress somewhat, but then on second-and-27, Woodmansee found wide receiver Dan Essley down the right side for a 40-yard touchdown play.

Time and egain, what little offensive drive Benicia could muster was brought to a Malt by fumbles and penalties. TMe Panthers fumbled eight times, losing possession on six of them. They were also charged with 10 penalties for a total of 87 yards. In addition, Cal defensive back Matt Dulick picked off one of Mitchell's passes and returned it 19 yards.

Cal coach Mike McGinnis said after the game that he was especially pleased with the Grizzlies' defense.

"We were shuffling our personnel around quite a bit on defense, but no matter who was in they still did the job," said McGinnis.

"I'm really happy with the game — when a team does this well its first game, you have to be pleased," he added.

And this weekend, McGinnis is the only coach in the EBAL who is saying that.

Chabot booters lax in 2-0 Ohlone win

Chabot College's soccer team gave coach John Shaw a cozy birthday gift with a 2-0 win over Ohlone in a non-conference battle yesterday at the Pleasanton Sports Park.

Immediately after the game, the players presented Shaw, whose team has yet to allow a goal in two contests, with a huge birthday cake made out to be a soccer field and sang a slightly out-of-tune version of Happy Birthday.

Despite the party atmosphere, Shaw was disappointed in his team's play in their second test of the year. The cake? It was perfect.

"We did not play very well at all," Shaw remarked, adding that there was not much improvement from his team's 5-0 win over Santa Rosa earlier in the week.

To most teams, seven goals without being scored upon is quite an achievement. To Chabot, it means buckling down for the tough Golden Gate Conference race, whose title eluded them for the first time in years last season.

"I think we were lucky to win today," Shaw explained. "Our shooting wasn't very good. On both of our goals, the goalie had to reach over the crossbar."

Chabot waited a long time to score, but packed their two in a short time period near the end of the first half. Both teams were scoreless in the second half.

"We had the wind in the second half, and we didn't do anything at all," Shaw reminded.

The Gladiators took a 1-0 lead 32 minutes into the game on a head shot by hustling Jerry Quarry in front of the net. The ball was kicked from the right side by Sergio Hernandez and it landed near the top of the crossbar.

After Ohlone goalie Armando Cordoba failed in his attempt to snatch it off the bar, Quarry headed the ball in.

The second goal occured ten minutes later off a penalty kick. Geoff Smythe was obstructed in the penalty area on a shot attempt and goalie Cordoba was issued a yellow card when he argued over the call.

The inspired Glads capitalized when John Rodriguez, a Dublin High graduate, slapped the penalty kick off the left post and into the nets for a 2-0 edge.

For the most part, though, the tough Ohlone squad held the Glads in check and managed seven shots on goal to Chabot's 14. Chabot goalkeeper Dave Schneider of Pleasanton played an outstanding game in the early going, saving two tough shots in the first two minutes to keep the visitors from breaking the game open.

The first occured right after the opening face-off when right wing Jay Sutherland met Schneider at the top of the goal box with a loose ball. Schneider later saved a forcing straight ahead shot-on-goal by Trevor Rodd.

The Glads continued to play excellent defense and held their own against the agressive Fremont JC, something they will have to continue when the tough GGC campaign opens.

Chabot plays Merritt College of Oakland Tuesday, and Shaw calls them a "very dangerous team. They have primarily South American players, so we expect a short passing game."

Shaw commented on the fine play of sweeper Bob Artenga and center-fullback Mike Wilcox, and Amador graduate. "I think defensively, we played real well," he concluded.

Running back Kevin Cole of San Jose State (32) cuts a corner in the first quarter of play against Utah State Saturday afternoon. Cole later scored San Jose's lone touchdown, but it wasn't enough as Utah State won the game 22-10.

Bears sting Vols

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Fullback Paul Jones ran for 128 yards and quarterback Charlie Young scored two touchdowns to lead California to a 27-17 victory over fumble-plagued Tennessee Saturday night.

Taking advantage of four Tennessee fumbles leading to two touchdowns and a field goal, California kept the Volunteers in their own territory most of the game.

Jim Breech booted field goals of 42 and 37 yards for California but his five misses were responsible for keeping Tennessee out of scoring position most of the game.

Young scored two of California's touchdowns on one-yard runs and connected on a 58- yard touchdown pass to flanker Floyd Eddings.

Tennessee's scores came on an 80-yard run by quarterback Jimmy Streater, a four-yard drive by tailback Kelsey Finch and a 23-yard field goal by Jim Gaylor.

Two seeds upset

Two seeded teams lost in the opening round of men's competition in the Livermore Tennis Club doubles Tournament yesterday afternoon at Granada High Schoo

Fifth seed Brad Schall and Jerry Stunkel fell to unseed Chuck and Bob Cannon, 7-5, 7-6. Dean Murray and Scoot Williford upset eighth-seeded Pete Mattern and Fred Scholl, 6-3, 6-4, in convincing fashion.

However, the rest of the men's competition offered few surprises.

Top-seed Bob Eyler and Ron Reynoldson breezed pass Chris Anderson and Dave Trimble, 6-2, 6-3 to advance to this morning's second round.

They will meet Dave Lee and Lynn Wilhite. The latter pair beat Andy West and Todd Madrid, 6-2, 2-6, 6-2 in the first round.

Third-seed Lee and Steve Williford took an impressive 6-2, 6-1 victory over Jeff Mackanic and Manzar Iqbal.

In other top first-round matches Dan Smith and Don Anger toppled Dave Stanfel and Clark Hanson, 6-4, 6-4, and Vic Lutz and Lloyd Smith romped over Dudley and John Alexander, 6-4, 6-4.

The two previous winners will tangle in another morning match today.

In women's competition, top-seed Suzanne Russ and Dana Maas defeated Sharon Clark and Pat Adkins, 6-1, 6-2, to advance to today's competition.

Carol Coywood and Jean Eaton, seeded second, rolled over Gina Boggini and Linda Dear, 6-1, 6-1, to reach the quarterfinals.

Third-seeded Kitty Anderson and Charlotte Trimble topped Pat Long and Kathy Scholl in probably the most exciting match of the competition. Anderson and Trimble took a 6-1, 4-6, 7-6 (5-3) tiebreaker decision.

After today's action the tournament will conclude next Saturday in both men's and women's divisions.

Plunkett sidelined in 49er debacle

SAN FRANCISCO — Paul Seal darted through a seam in the Denver Bronco offense. Scott Bull threw the ball on a line for Seal's fingertips. Seal dropped it.

And thus, as 41,505 persons looked on less then enthusiastically, a fine old San Francisco tradition was kept alive. The 49ers, who have not scored a touchdown since last month were beaten 20-0, last night at Candlestick Park.

The play described above ended a drive that showcased Bull's undeveloped ability to march a team upfield. The second-year man came into the game, to the delight of the crowd, when Jim Plunkett twisted a left knee during the second quarter.

As often happens, the San Francisco defense was not all that bad. It gave up a five-yard touchdown pass from Craig Morton to Riley Odoms late in the opening period.

And even that came after the offense could move only three yards following a Denver punt that went out of bounds at the one.

The other Denver touchdown spotlighted another of those tragicomic moments that have freckled the 49er history.

With 7:57 remaining in the third quarter Morton fired his pass directly into the arms of San Francisco rookie Stan Black, who ran the ball back 39 yards to the Denver 35.

Exactly one (1) play later — a span of 14 seconds Bull dropped a flat pass flatly into the hands of Bronco linebacker Randy Gradishar who sprinted 70 yards for a touchdown.

In addition to Plunkett, defensive tackle Jimmy Webb went out of the game with a twisted ankle.

But, injuries or no, things can't get any easier for the 49ers next week when, with their total of three points in three games behind them, they travel to Pittsburgh to take on the Steelers. If memory serves well, that's the team whose defense is known as the Steel Curtain.

And the fans, some 2000 of whom stayed until the bitter end, knew it, too. With seconds left in the game, they took up a simple chant, that called to mind the team's turbulent off-season.

"We want Clark."

Cards sharp in opener

Colorado holds off Stanford

BOULDER, Colo. — Fullback James Mayberry scored twice and Colorado held off a fourth-quarter Stanford rally to post a 27-21 victory Saturday in the college football opener for both teams.

Linebacker Brian Cabral's end-zone interception and middle guard Laval Short's fumble recovery stopped Stanford drives.

Two fourth-period touchdown passes by Stanford's highly regarded quarterback, Guy Benjamin, kept the Cardinals in contention until the closing minutes of the contest.

On the second play of the final quarter, Benjamin tossed an 11-yard scoring pass to split end Bill Kellar that cut the Colorado lead to 20-14.

After a Colorado fumble, Stanford marched from its own 29-yard line to the Colorado 10, but Benjamin's hurried pass into the end zone was tipped by linebacker Tom Perry into the hands of Cabral.

Colorado, ranked 12th, then drove the length of the field for Mayberry's second score of the afternoon. His 17-yard jaunt put Colorado ahead 27-14 with 4:20 left in the game.

However, Stanford struck back quickly. Benjamin tossed a short pass to halfback Darrin Nelson and the speedy freshman dashed along the sideline for a 56-yard scoring play that pulled the Cardinals within 27- 21 with 3:39 remaining.

The Buffaloes weren't able to make a first down on their next possession and punted. With less than two minutes to play, on a fourth-and-two situation, Nelson was hit at the line and fumbled, and Short recovered at the Stanford 36. Colorado then ran out the clock.

Colorado appeared totally in control after taking a 13-0 lead at the half. The Buffaloes scored on their second and third possessions of the game.

The first score came after Stanford faked a field goal and threw an incomplete pass. Colorado then marched 66 yards, with quarterback Jeff Knapple hittie-yard pass play Niziolek in the back of the end zone on a three-yard pass play.

Colorado got another scoring opportunity minutes later when Stanford's Brad Fox, a freshman punter, couldn't handle a low snap from center and was tackled at the Cardinal 27.

Pete Dadiotis followed with a 25-yard field goal.

Near the end of the half, end Randy Westendorf picked off a Benjamin pass consecueturned to near mid-field. Split end Steve Gaunty caught consecutive passes of 17 and 19 yards, and Dadiotis kicked a 37-yard field goal with three seconds left in the half.

Stanford scored midway through the third quarter.

Reserve fullback John Finley got the score on a one-yard run.

Mayberry countered three minutes later, scoring on a seven-yard run to cap a 72-yard Colorado drive. That gave the Buffaloes a 20-7 advantage and set the stage for Stanford's fourth-quarter heroics.

Waived Medich wins game

OAKLAND — Doc Medich, put on waivers earlier in the day, held Milwaukee scoreless over the final four innings and gained his 10th victory of the year as the Oakland A's defeated the Brewers 4-1 Saturday.

Medich improved his record to 10-6 after taking over for starter Pablo Torrealba with the score tied 1-1.

Mike Jorgensen drove in two Oakland runs off losing pitcher Lary Sorensen, 5-9. Jorgensen singled in the first and again in the sixth, when the A's scored two runs and took the lead. Mitchell Page drove in the other run in the sixth inning with a single.

Milwaukee got its only run in the fifth on a double by Steve Brye, a single by Charlie Moore and an infield out by Robin Yount.

Earlier in the day, Charles O. Finley put Medich on "irrevocable waivers" because the Oakland owner said he was unhappy with remarks Medich made about the team. However, no team claimed Medich and he was able to pitch for the A's again.

The A's took the lead 1-0 in the first inning on a bunt single by Rodney Scott, a sacrifice and a single by Jorgensen.

They scored their final run in the seventh on a single by Manny Sanguillen, a double by Wayne Gross and a sacrifice fly by Tony Armas.

Astros shut out punchless Giants

HOUSTON — Mark Lemongello and Joe Sambito combined on a three-hitter and Cesar Cedeno blasted a two-run homer as the Houston Astros blanked the San Francisco Giants 2-0 Saturday night.

Cedeno blasted his 10th home run of the season just inside the left field foul pole, scoring Enos Cabell, who had singled, for the game's only runs.

The victory was the 14th for Houston in its last 16 games and their 12th in their last 13 home contests.

The Astros loaded the bases in the seventh but failed to score. Leadoff singles by Jose Cruz and Art Howe and left fielder Darrell Evans' error put runners on second and third before Roger Metzger struck out for the first out.

A royal night for goring, Mats trip

Granada's Robert Jamieson sweeps right end.

Poor field position and a powerful Overfelt defensive iine proved to be too much for Granada High School's football team as the Matadors opened the 1977 season with a 21-8 defeat at the hands of the San Jose team Friday night at the Granada field.

The Matadors played for the first time under their new lights but the powerful Royals went to work quickly to end Granada's hopes.

The first two times the Matadors received the ball they were inside their 20-yard line.

After the third Granada punt Overfelt, rated second in the Mt. Hamilton League's Northern Division, went to work.

Starting at their own 32-yard line the Royals went 68 yards in 13 plays to hit the scoreboard first.

Quarterback Nattie George hit wide receiver Lee Rodriguez with a 20-yard pass in the corner of the end zone to conclude the touchdown drive with 6:20 left in the second quarter.

George's passing was the key in the Overfelt drive as he hit Bruce Taylor for 11 yards and Robert Trujillo for 24. Trujillo's catch put the Royals at the Matador 27 and after five running plays and a five-yard penalty against Granada George found Rodriguez for the score.

The Matadors came back to drive to the Overfelt 37 before quarterback Steve Robison lost a yard and a pass fell incomplete under a heavy rush.

The Mats punted into the end zone and the Royals took over on their 20. Mike Blanton, subbing for injured tailback Carl Monroe, got nothing on a straight line buck and Overfelt received a five-yard penalty.

However, fullback Kirk Yokoyama, the slowest member of the swift Royal backfield, broke through the line on the next play, ran to his right, dodged a Granada tackler and sprinted into the end zone for an 85-yard TD run. Rodriguez's extra-point kick was good and Overfelt took a 15-0 lead into the locker-room at halftime.

The Royals added their final score in the third quarter.

After forcing the Matadors to punt Overfelt drove 62 yards in five plays, aided by a 15-yard penalty.

Blanton ran for seven yards on the first play after the punt but Yokoyama got just one on a sMort buck into the line.

But George got the Royals a first down as he scampered 15 yards off tackle to the Granada 39. The 15-yard penalty moved the ball to the 24. From there the Royal quarterback hurled a 23-yard pass to a leaping Dwayne Taylor at the one. George then drove over for the score. The run for the two-point conversion failed but tMe Royals had a safe 21-0 lead with 3:36 left in the third period.

In the fourth quarter Robison went to work and completed four of six passes in an 89-yard touchdown drive.

He connected with split end Steve Waldera for 19 yards to the Overfelt 33 and then ran 17 yards on his own to the 15. From there he again found Waldera over the middle for the score with 7:13 left in te the game. Brad Wood made a leaping catch of a Robison pass for the two-point conversion.

The Royals played havoc with the Matadors' offense all night long, sacking Robison twice and intercepting one of his passes. 5-11, 235 pound nose guard John Revelez sparked the Overfelt defensive effort.

Granada coach Don Couch admitted Overfelt was a physical squad but said his team could have had better field position.

"We never had a chance to establish the run or pass with the kind of field position we had for the first three quarters," he moaned. "That hurt us the most."

Couch praised his defense for holding down the vaunted Royal offense.

"Our defense did an especially good job considering they have a 9.5 sprinter (Taylor) and a 9.8 quarterback," he stated. "Mike Nalty and Kevin Gosney were outstanding for us."

Robison felt he could have played better but thought the team did well in the fourth quarter.

"We started connecting in the fourth period because the line was blocking really well," he said. "I had more time to find my receivers."

Overfelt had a decided advantage in total offense with 326 yards to 132 for Granada. However, a lot of that came on Yokoyama's long touchdown burst.

In the junior varsity contest Granada fared better as the Matadors took a 13-6 decision.

Falcons tie SM

Friday's only local chance to cheer

Foothill head coach John Lupoi probably wishes high school football teams were allotted four timeouts per half instead of three.

If a confused Falcon defense had not called three timeouts before the third quarter had ended, a late Foothill offensive surge might not have been halted at the St. Mary's 22-yard line with time running out and a 7-7 tie with the Panthers would have been an upset victory.

As it was, the Falcon offense, bottled up most of the night, almost hit paydirt before the final gun.

Scott Henderson's interception of a Ralph Beachum pass with 47 seconds left gave Foothill the ball at St. Mary's 40. Greg Costello then bulled his way through the Panther defense for 15 yards to the 25. An unusual five-yard penalty — a Foothill player's chinstrap was unsnapped — stopped the clock with 17 seconds remaining.

Quarterback Doug Stevenson fired a pass down the left side of the field to Sam Sisneroz, but Sisneroz was unable to get out of bounds before time ran out.

Lupoi seemed more bewildered than upset concerning the three time outs after the game. "All I know is that our defense called three quick timeouts in the third quarter. No one really knows why," he said.

But that same defense also drew praise from Lupoi.

"The defense played an outstanding game," he said. "I think we made them do some things they weren't planning on. I'm sure we forced them to t' v the ball a lot more tha.. 'ey wanted to."

St. Mary's, a highly-regarded Catholic League team from Berkeley, was held to only 128 yards of total offense by Foothill.

Both of the contests' touchdowns occured in the first quarter. The visitors got on the board first, scoring on their initial offensive possession.

The key play in the Panthers' 48-yard drive was a pass interference call against Foothill at the Falcons' 29. From there, St. Mary's quarterback Ralph Beachum arched a perfect scoring strike just over the arms of a Foothill defender to Arch Zellick, who made a fine over-the-shoulder catch at the goal line.

The Falcons came right back, though, with a drive of their own, highlighted by runs of 14 and 15 yards by Costello. Foothill marched all the way to St. Mary's 17-yard line, but Stevenson fumbled the ball.

St. Mary's was unable to move the ball and was forced to punt. Foothill's Monty Winn charged through the line to block the kick, falling on the ball at the 2-yard-line. Stevenson then scored on a quarterback sneak, and Sisoneroz booted the PAT to finish the evening's scoring.

Costello was the game's leading ground-gainer with 80 yards on 17 carries, and towards the end of the contest he and Steve Evans gave the Falcons a strong one-two punch on the ground. Evans finished with 45 yards on 12 carries, with most of his tries coming between the tackles.

Lupoi was especially pleased with Foothill's 130 yards on the ground. "We've been concentrating on the basic running plays in practice — the blast, the dive, the veer — because we knew we had to get our running game going. I think we now know we can run the ball on people."

Quarterback has been something of a quesion-mark for Foothill, ever since top prospect Kevin Henderson moved to Texas. Stevenson, a junior, was 7 for 15 for 73 yards, although he did fumble several times.

"Doug had some opening-game jitters," said Lupoi. "He had a lot on his mind. But he's only a junior, but I know he'll really come along with a little more game experience."

Gaining game experience seems to be the key for Foothill this season. Lupoi noted, "It's hard to be very down on the kids about anything that happened tonight, especially with only four seniors on defense and two on offense. The kids played their hardest and did what we asked them to do."

The game was the first-ever for Foothill's varsity at the school's newly-lighted stadium.

Next week the Falcons take on Alhambra, one of thp best teams in the East Bay.

Cowboys fizzle and lose it

The only happy faces seen in the vicinity of Livermore High School Friday night were those who left the football game between the Cowboys and Castro Valley High early.

They never saw the roof cave in on the luckless 'Pokes, who dropped a 20-17 decision to the visiting Trojans by giving up a pair of freak touchdowns in the last seven minutes of the game.

It was the first pre-season varsity football game for both teams in 1977. The Livermore JV's prevailed in the opener, 14-6.

Livermore, holding a spacious 17-7 lead, had the ball on the CV 14-yard line midway through the fourth quarter and appeard headed for a clinching touchdown.

But a pair of penalties forced them back to the 32, and the best they could do was a 42-yard field goal attempt from Jeff Perry which fell short with minutes to go.

When Castro Valley quarterback Bill Plant took over at his own 20, he promptly ran through a gaping hole on the right side, dodged a tackler and ran 80 yards for a touchdown to put his team right back in the game. Jim Castaneda's conversion made it 17-14.

Castro Valley held the 'Pokes on four downs, and when Naish Piazza's punt was shanked off the side of his foot, CV took over at their own 40 with 4:31 to play.

Alvin Johnson ran twice for nine yards, but fumbled a pitch on third down and the Trojans were in deep. However, Plant completed a 15-yard pass to Lloyd Johnson on fourth and 12 to keep CV alive.

Two more carries by Alvin Johnson gave CV a first down a the Cowboys 35, and a pass interference call against the 'Pokes put the ball on the 20.

The Cowboy defense buckled down and stopped Alvin Johnson on a draw play for a four-yard loss. However, nose guard Dave Farfan was hurt on the play and forced out of the game.

CV pulled out another surviving play when Chuck Grover took a pitch-out and scampered 14 yards for a first down just inside the ten-yard line.

With only 46 seconds to go, Plant tried to pass on first down but couldn't find a receiver and was forced out of bounds. He then threw two incomplete passes, setting up a fourth and goal with 24 seconds left.

The 'Poke defense again rose to the occasion, but a little luck might have helped them this time. Plant's desperation pass in the general direction of the end zone bounced out of a Cowboy defender's hand, into the hands of the Trojans' Brad Wellman who also couldn't find the handle, and finally settling into Mike Dormer's arms one yard deep into the end zone for a Castro Valley touchdown and the game.

Amid cries from the Livermore sidelines and defenders that two offensive men in a row touched the ball, the TD pass was ruled legal.

The Cowboys, despite their defensive lapse, played a strong game for the most part and showed no signs of a letup by rolling out to a 10-0 first half lead.

Greg Palmer tucked away an eight-yard balloon pass from Piazza near the five-yard line and ran in for the 'Pokes first score, coming on the first play of the second quarter. Perry's PAT made it 7-0.

Perry later gave Livermore a 10-0 lead when he booted a very clean 37 yard field goal, clearing the bars by a good five to ten yards.

However, Castro Valley — which at this point had only seven offensiv plays from scrimmage to Livermore's 30 — took advantag of a pair of penalties and drove to the Cowboy 33, where Plant hooked up with Rich Vaccarezza on a long, looping TD pass past a pair of 'Poke defenders.

The play, coming with 3:44 left in the third quarter, made it 10-7.

The Cowboys scored on the very next drive after CV's kickoff, going 51 yards in seven plays, culminated by Bob Bolen's grab of a fourth down pass from Piazza in the end zone.

Interior linemen Greg Tennyson, Darryl Hansen, Rick Macedo, Chris Rockstead and Lee Peterson opened up some gaping holes for the 'Pokes in the drive, which included an 18-yard run by swift halfback Pete Martinez.

Perry's PAT kick gave the 'Pokes a seemingly safe 17-7 lead as the third quarter came to a close.

Martinez and Frank Brown were inmpressive in the backfield for the Cowboys, Martinez gaining 92 yards on 14 carries and Brown getting 28 on just four. Piazza ran for 65 yards, and was fairly dominant at QB, completing nine of 19 for 72 yards. His counterpart Plant connected on eight of 18 for 123 yards.

Bolen made a pair of fingertip catches for the 'Pokes in a surprising debut as tight end, grabbing three passes in crucial situations.

Livermore's control of the first half is aptly illustrated in the first down statistics, where they had nine before the Trojans even managed one.

Berry, Humphreys take over

Bill Berry has been selected head cross country coach at Foothill High School.

Berry, who will also teach mathamatics at Foothill, has been a teacher at Harvest Park School. He replaced athletic director Jack Keegan as the Falcons' harrier mentor. He will also be the Falcons' assistant track coach.

Jan Humphreys will take over the post of girls' swimming coach at Foothill. The Pleasanton resident was Amador Valley High School's assistant swim coach last year.

USC wins

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Rob Hertel tossed touchdown passes to Randy Simmrin and William Gay and scampered 10 yards for another tally, leading fourth-ranked Southern Cal to a 27-10 victory over Missouri Saturday in the football season opener for both teams.

Hertel drove the Trojans 73 yards midway through the fourth period after the Tigers closed to within three points. In the final seconds, his 10-yard touchdown burst cinched the victory and avenged a 46-25 loss the Tigers inflicted on Southern Cal in last year's opener.

Charles White, the latest in a long line of great Trojan tailbacks, gained more than 150 yards and scored USC's first touchdown with an 18 yard dash in the first quarter.

A sour, high protein loss

FREMONT — Amador Valley High School football coach Duffy Dufour has devoted the majority of the pre-season trying to build his team's self-image.

That process included lavish steak dinners before scrimmages.

Dufour had the questionable opportunity to watch the fruits of his efforts as the new h d coach at Amador here Friday night, and he didn't like what he saw.

What he surveyed was a veritable lemon grove, as the disgruntled Dons dropped a 14-6 decision to the Irvington Vikings.

"I'm trying to build a pride element. I want to have a first-class operation and I think we're making strides towards that. The dinners and all are great, but they didn't help us win," Dufour pointed out.

Although the Dons outdistanced the Vikes in total yardage, and the Amador defense held them to what Dufour considered a respectable 14 points, the Dons were unable to control the ball during most of the first half. The Vikes managed to get the imperative first downs that gave them their scoring positions.

This is not to say that the Dons didn't get close. They penetrated enemy territory numerous times, but somehow failed to get into the end zone.

Wolves yelp, 21-7

Rollercoaster tickets sold here

DANVILLE — It's going to be tough for San Ramon to avoid another up-and-down year if the reasons for Friday night's season-opening, 21-7 defeat to Oak Grove are repeated.

Five key penalties ruined as many promising drives put together by the Wolves, nullifying quarterback Guy Houston's best efforts and leaving the home supporters wondering what could have happened — less the miscues.

"Penalties were the big thing," said head Coach Lyle Setencich, "but give them credit — they didn't make any mistakes." The Eagles, a tough San Jose squad coached by Phil Stearns, helped themselves to the win by committing only minor errors at times when they could afford to do so.

Both teams were evenly matched at the outset. The effective execution by the Oak Grove offensive line, coupled with those stifling penalties levied against San Ramon, accounted for the imbalance at the final gun.

The visitors drew first blood, setting up a touchdown with an interception deep in San Ramon territory. Halfback Mark Ackernecht threw an option pass to sophomore end Mark Ramirez from three yards out to start things off, giving Oak Grove a 7-0 lead with two minutes to go in the first period.

The Eagles intercepted Houston four times during the evening, and also played the opportunists by recovering a fumble in scoring range.

The Wolves struck back quickly. Sided by a 35-yard kickoff return to their own 41, the offense went right to work. Paul Fisch took a pitchout 18 more yards, and two plays later Houston connected with Campbell for another first down, this time on the Eagles' 26. Then the teams switched sides as time ran out in the quarter.

Setencich and Houston conferred during a subsequent time - out, apparently deciding to go for broke. On the snap, the senior quarterback took a quick step back and lefted a pass toward Campbell and an Eagle defender, who was with him step-for-step. When the pass came down in the corner of the end zone, Campbell outmuscled his Oak Grove counterpart to make a spectacular grab for the score. The PAT made it 7-7 at 10:50 of the second stanza.

Dublin dumped, 13-0

Hey, it was close

Whether or not the score shows that the game was close, whether or not the statistic sheets show the game was close and whether or not the physicalness of the game shows so, American High School's 13-0 victory over host Dublin Friday night was exactly that, close.

For three and one-half periods of play the Dublin Gaels kept scoreless pace with the visiting Fremont squad and then with the law of averages finally coming around the American Eagles scored on a fumble recovery in the Gaels endzone and capped off the final moments of the game with a nine yard touchdown run.

The Gaels frittered away four fumbles, recovering only two of six, they totaled 92 yards on nine penalties and seemed to have a lackadasical attitude about stopping the big play.

Tom Wittmer was the bull for the American squad getting 101 yards in 23 carries and reeling off gainers of 10 twice, nine and a long gainer of 17. If Wittmer wasn't running wild with the ball it was likely that American was either attempting and missing one of three field goal attempts or connecting on one of three pass completions good for 11, 14 and nine yards.

This accounts for seven of the 19 third down situations the Eagles faced, they connected on eight crucial second or third down plays, missing eleven times, included are the three attempted field goals.

With 5:22 left Steve Martin and Greg Arenas chased Mike Hardy into the endzone forcing him to cough up the ball along the way. Martin pounced on the ball to give the Eagles a 7-0 lead, after Rich tenBosch hit the extra-point kick.

It was only fitting that with inside of a minute remaining the Eagles should finally mount an offensive attack that would put points on the board.

Steve Sekoch capped an eight play 48 yard drive with an unmolested seven yard scamper into the endzone. Wittmer enthralled the audience with four carries for 23 yards during the drive with succesive carries of 10, seven and two before Sekoch scored on a second down play.

Perhaps the most exciting part of the evening for the Gaels was the pass-catching ability of Dan Pearson. Pearson caught four of Hardy's passes for 70 yards and a 17.5 average per catch.

The Gaels did mount one scoring drive, but a three yard loss on the six yard line closed the first half of play.

Dublin took posession of the ball first and ten on their 39 with 36 seconds left, after a punt. Two exiting plays took the Hardy led Gaels to the six with nine seocnd left only to roll out and be dropped for the three yard loss as the gun sounded.

An 18 yard run by Jon Batchelor off of a pitch from Hardy and a thirty yard pass play from Hardy to Pearson put the Gaels in scoring position.

DUBLIN — The Dublin High School athletic field Friday night was dedicated in the memory of Robert D. Chapman.

Mr. Chapman was a member of the Dublin booster and a long-time participant in youth athletic programs in the Valley. He was instrumental in the drive to obtain light for the Dublin High field.

Ceremonies to name the field the "Robert D. Chapman Memorial Stadium" were held at the halftime of Friday's American-Dublin football game.

Principal Bob Hagler conducted ceremonies that were attended by Mr. Chapman's family.

Chabot falls, 20-13

A loss, by any other name

STOCKTON — All things being equal, with the exception of the final score, Chabot College dropped its non-conference football opener, 20-13, to San Joaquin Delta Friday night.

Each team had 73 offensive plays and Chabot outgained the Mustangs by a single yard, 206-205. Yet, it isn't hard to discover why Delta was able to send the 400 or so fans who rattled around in 33,000-seat Pacific Memorial Stadium home happy.

Of the 86 center snaps made by the two teams in the first half, only 16 came in Mustang territory. And all-purpose kicker Brett Chamberlain put some thump into the Delta attack, averaging 37.6 yards per punt, booting two field goals and dropping three missed three-point tries into the end zone to again leave Chabot with unfavorable field position.

Throw in the fact that starting quarterback Ron Jones had only minimal experience directing the diverse Gladiator attack and it's not surprising Chabot coach Keith Calkins is willing to shrug the game off as a learning experience.

"This was Ronnie's first start," said Calkins of the 6-1, 180-pound quarterback who completed just nine of 30 passes Friday night. "He didn't have a particularly good game, he'll get better next week."

On the other hand, Calkins admitted, "We must have had about ten passes dropped. I'm disappointed .

"We could have done some things, but we didn't run a very poised team and we used a lot of young kids," he explained. Delta, a team Chabot defeated in the only prior meeting last season, wasn't an unknown quantity, but Calkins was surprised by the Mustangs' ability to get outside.

If Calkins was surprised at that portion of the Delta attack, his Mustang counterpart, Bill Gott, had to be delighted. Prophesizing doom for his club, Gott may have had to pry his tongue out of his cheek when Lindell Hawkins fluid sprints around the ends accounted for 121 yards.

Chabot wasted little time and less pretension after forcing Delta to punt early in the first quarter. One the Glads' first play from scrimmage, Jones pitched out to running back Eric Lane, who launched a bomb to Dave Fernandez, jogging across the Mustang 20.

Fernandez curled into the end zone to complete the 71-yard stunner and with only 3:05 gone, Chabot led 6-0. It was the Glads' final lead.

Later in the period, Jones sailed a soft pass toward the right sideline and Jeff Evans. But, Kevin "Mr. Black Magic" Arbet darted in to quickly change the direction of the play and cause seven points to materialize on the Delta side of the scoreboard after an unhurried 54-yard run to the end zone.

When tackle Jim Erickson blocked a Chabot punt to set up another quick Mustang score in the middle of the second quarter, Delta came up with its next trick, the disappearing ball carrier.

While every conceivable Chabot defender went with the flow of the play, William Maschal packed the ball eight yards into the left corner of the end zone on a reverse, jitterbugging, Watusiing, Funky-Chickening and doing everything else within his power to emulate Elmo Wright each step of the way.

All that remained for the Mustangs were field goals of 40 and 24 yards by Chamberlain.

Chabot managed one stretch of brilliance, when it moved 68 yards in 14 plays after the second half kick-off to record the most impressive drive of the night.

Lane had a trio of large running gains on the march and caught a 20-yard Jones' pass on fourth and seven to keep the march moving inside Delta territory. Jones hit Keith Fyfe with a roll-out pass to the right flag from six yards away for the six and Livermore's Charlie Bockover made it seven with the PAT.

Chabot faces its final non-conference game and second withering bus trip of the season Saturday when it travels to Visalia to meet the College of the Sequoias.

Raiders stymie Rams

The final score, 21-0, Oakland over Los Angeles, told the story, and quarterback Kenny Stabler was quick to acknowledge the fact.

In the visitors' locker room after the world champions had handed the Rams their first pre-season shutout since 1946, Stabler noted, "No doubt about it. Our defense did the job. They just controlled the game and gave the offense great field position. This gave the offense the opportunity to do what it had to do and we did it."

The Alabama Snake expressed satisfaction in the victory, because, as he explained, "We beat a quality football team and that has to make you feel good. But it proved again that the defense is the key to our success. If they play well, we'll do okay."

Coach John Madden noted, "Last week against the 49ers we were shooting to be sharp and we accomplished that. This week we wanted to carry it over and make the most of the chance to give reserves a chance to gain experience. We accomplished this and from now on we'll go with the regular offensive and defensive units."

Asked to compare his current team with that of last season, Madden responded, "I would thing we are further along because we are working with the same offensive and defensive starters. Last season at this time, we were struggling because of numerous injuries."

Defensive end John Matuszak, who joined the Raiders after the first league game in 1976, agreed with the Raider skipper. Big John, a vital cog in the Oakland 3-4 defense, said "Our defense is much more coordinated now. We know we've got the best offense in the league and the defense is trying to catch up and contribute."

Matuszak added, "I'm glad the season is starting finally. These pre-season games get awful boring. But it was nice to get a few outs (shutouts) against good running clubs like San Francisco and Los Angeles."

Quoting other Raiders:

Jeff Barnes, the rookie linebacker from California, was one of the game standouts, getting two sacks and stopping everything that came his way on sweeps. His biggest thrill, he admitted, was sacking Joe Namath. "Joe Willie has always been my idol and he's a legend and a sure-fire Hall - of - Famer. Just the thought of sacking a legend like Joe Willie has to be a thrill."

Dons stagger, spoil Dufour's debut

"When you get down on the three or four yard lines and don't score, you don't deserve to win," Dufour said.

Following a frustrated first half, Amador's defense tightened up, limiting the Vikings to one-sixth of their total first downs, and picking off three of Vikes' quarterback Paul Pinkett's passes.

Amador defensive back Chuck Gilliam intercepted a potential scoring pass late in the third quarter. Just to keep his momentum strong, he gave the Dons another opportunity by stealing the ball again from Pinkett moments later.

Mid-way through the fourth quarter, Pinkett threw a bomb, and as his receiver watched in amazement as he ran into the end zone, Amador defensive back Ken Whitaker snatched the touchdown from him.

The Amador offense, which had been sluggish during most of the evening, began to display a sample of their potential in the fourth quarter.

Four consecutive first downs set the Amador squad up in position for quarterback Pat Inglesby to connect with tight end Paul McCleary in the corner of the end zone, putting the Dons on the board for the first time.

The 19 yard touchdown pass followed a 55 yard drive by the Dons.

Hardnosed Amador tailback Rob Flores added 33 yards in two consecutive rushes. Prior to that, Inglesby again was on target to McCleary for 22 yards.

Passing situations for the Dons were kept to a minimum otherwise. Dufour explained that part of the reason was that Inglesby had hyperextended his elbow in the first quarter. This might have been expected as the starting quaterback was also doubling as a defensive back. Even allowing for the injury, Dufour was less than pleased with the overall tally.

"We have a good passing team, but we just haven't shown it yet," he said.

From now on, there will be a definite emphasis in practice according to Dufour. He explained that,defensively team would stress pass defense and attemtp to make it more difficult for their opponents to get option plays.

"Offensively, we're going to work on getting the ball to the running backs," he outlined. "But we'll have to hold onto the ball first," he added.

Admittedly, Dufour said that he was not pleased, and that in addition to the areas of extra concentration, they would work on everything to insure a victory.

"What happened was that we really beat ourselves. We had the opportunities, but we didn't cash in on them. We just sort of broke down out there, and I think it was a lack of concentration," he hypothesized.

The Dons will have the chance to redeem themselves next Friday night, when they open their home season against the Tracy Bulldogs.

Chrissie takes U.S. Open title

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. — Chris Evert, hitting her groundstrokes from the baseline with machine-like precision, wore down scrappy Wendy Turnbull of Australia 7- 6, 6-2 Saturday to win her third consecutive U.S. Open women's singles crown.

Miss Evert thus becomes the first woman to win three straight Open titles since Maureen Connolly did it in 1951-53.

The victory was worth $33,000 from the total purse of $462,420 to Miss Evert, but more importantly it cemented her standing as the premier player in women's tennis. Ever since losing to Virginia Wade in the semi-finals at Wimbledon, Miss Evert has been pointing towards Forest Hills.

"I wanted to win this tournament badly, very badly," she said. "I want to stay on top, to be No. 1, and to be No. 1 I think you have to win a major title. This was my chance."

LARPD Softball

Hill slams one

Bob Hill rapped a first-inning grand-slam home run and Satu Lahti(added a three-run homer in the fourth inning as High Times blasted Body Comfort 12-3 in regular-season ending play of the LARPD Mens C League Slo-pitch softball action Friday night.

Other games Friday saw Granada Bowl dump Oaks Card Room 12-5, Kelly's Cardinals blanked Twilight Zone 15-0, and Trinity Baptist edged the Assassins in a wild one, 12-11.

Hill also singled and tripled in his team's win, while Rick Vanderbur singled twice and doubled, Mark Coyne doubled twice, Gene Hammeral and Greg Hearn each singled twice and Dwayne Nunes and Ron Nunes singled.

Tony Lizarraga tripled and scored the first run of the game for the losers, while Bruce Cimino singled twice, Dave Rounds doubled and John Self and Gene Grant each singled.

Granada Bowl clinched a playoff spot with a 12-5 win over Oaks Card room. Sarge Krasko belted a home run and single, while John Parra tripled and doubled to lead the winners. Mark Petak added two singles and a double, Mike Ferreri doubled, Jim Smith doubled and singled, Jerry Spence doubled and singled and Lester Knight singled.

For the losers, Tim Van Slambrook doubled and tripled, Gary Neto rapped two singles, John Riley went 3-for-3 with a trio of hits, Walt Zabel doubled and singled, Joe Hernandez doubled and singled and Scott Neely and Don Armstrong each singled.

Kelly's Cardinals scored five runs in the first and sixth enroute to its 15-0 win over Twilight Zone.

Five players had at three hits for the winners. John Ferguson led the pack with a single, double and triple; Dewey Thompson doubled twice and singled; Bill Holloway singled twice and doubled; and Al Hanson and Vince Pedrola each had three singles. Dick Spiewmaker and Bob Kibwell each singled, while Landy Gallion doubled and singled and Tony Escalente singled twice.

Rick McCart doubled and singled and Jim McCart singled for the only Zone hits.

Hillsborough Handicap

Speedy Star takes it easily

SAN MATEO — Speedballing Fager's Star led all the way Saturday to win the $26,800 Hillsborough Handicap at Bay Meadows and bring jockey A.L. Diaz his seventh victory in two days.

Diaz took the five-year-old daughter of Dr. Fager out of the gate handily and paced the field of seven fillies and mares around the one mile dirt oval in 1:36.2. They fought off challenges from Fleet Courage, Pleased Look and Our First Delight to give the Florida-bred mare her third win of the year in 16 starts.

Fager's star finished a neck in front of Our First Delight and Francisco Mena with Fllet Courage and Mark Couto another two and a half lengths behind.

With a crowd of 13,476 watching, Diaz hustled Fager's Star on top out of the gate and kept her comfortably in front of Fleet Courage and Pleased Look in the early going while setting fractio of 23.1, 46.2 and 1:10.4. The victory earned $15,550 for Ms. Gene M. Washburn, owner of Fager's Star, and boosted the mare's earnings this year to $44,580.

"I rated this horse nicely and she ran kindly," said Diaz after his fourth win of the afternoon. "She still had plenty left at the quarter pole and I knew then we had it in the bag."

Going off as the third choice at 3-1, Fager's Star returned $8.20, $4.20 and $3.80. Our First Delight returned $3.60 and $3.20 while Fleet Courage paid $4.20 to show.

Pacara, who left the gate as the favorite, was seeking her fourth straight Stakes triumph but the Argentine-bred mare never threatened seriously and finished fourth.

Seeking his fifth jockey championship in six years at Bay Meadows, Diaz also scored Saturday aboard Pelegrin Sands ($8.40) in the second, Rocket Review ($7.20) in the fifth and a nine-leng th J triumph on Hammerin' Hank ($7) in the sixth befo capturing the Stakes feature.

Diaz also scored a triple Friday and now is running away with the jockey lead with 11 victories during the first five days of racing at San Mateo.

Crow Canyon

Green belt in your own home

Sunny interior garden atriums that provide the year-round beauty of living plants are a special feature of the uncommon elegance inherent in the Fairway Villa homes at Crow Canyon Country Club located near Danville.

Each of the four Fairway Villa plans has its own atrium which relates not only to the living areas of the homes but in some cases the secondary rooms as well.

Crow Canyon's Fairway Villas are situated overlooking the private golf course and are designed to take full advantage of magnificent views provided by the fairways and the surrounding hillsides.

Thse two and three bedroom townhomes offer from 1,425 to 1,585 square feet of living area and come with a long list of custom appointments. Among the amenities included are inside laundry rooms, private dressing areas, ceramic tile entries, pantrys and wood-burning fireplaces. Prices are from $79,490 to $88,490.

A good deal of emphasis has been placed on the atriums of these homes. The St. Andrews has two atriums. One complements the master suite, the other, the entry and living room. In this two bedroom, two bath home the living room and breakfast/kitchen nook area open onto a privat rear patio affording maximum view of the 6,200 yard private golf course.

The Pinehurst is also a two bedroom, two bath home though somwhat more formal. The atrium is shared by both the living and dining rooms, and the kitchen breakfast nook area is dramatically highlighted by a ceiling skylight. This plan offers direct interior access to the garage via the laundry service room.

The Sea Pines has three bedrooms or two bedrooms and optional den. The atrium of this home is in direct view of the entry, living and dining rooms and patio.

The Augusta is also a three bedroom home. It is distinguished by a secluded master bedroom suite separated from the secondary bedrooms. Its atrium is situated to complement the entry.

To reach Crow Canyon, take Highway 680 to the Crow Canyon Road exit east and go directly to the community.

Indoor atriums are a special feature of the Fairway Villa homes by Broadmoor Homes, Inc. at Crow Canyon Country Club near Danville. Prices range from $79,490 to $88,490.

Builder asked pals to stop deal

By RICK VOGT
Lesher News Bureau

MARTINEZ — Developer Ken Hofmann says he asked Assemblyman Dan Boatwright, D-Concord, and Sen. John Nejedly, R-Walnut Creek, to intervene in the purchase of marshland by the state because they were his only friends in Sacramento.

The intervention by Boatwright and Nejedly has resulted in the prevention of purchase of 317 acres of land on the edge of the Suisun Marsh near Suisun City, Solano County, and which Hofmann says he has an option to buy.

Hofmann, who is prepared to pay $6,000 an acre for the land owned by the Lawler family, contends the land shouldn't be part of the area which would be protected as a wildlife refuge under Suisun Marsh legislation.

Boatwright and Hofmann, as well as being personal friends, are business partners in the Countrywood shopping center.

Hofmann said he has contributed to Boatwright election campaigns since the Democratic assemblyman was on the Concord city council.

Hofmann said he had offered the state Wildlife Conservation Board 2,000 acres for $1 million as a substitute for the 317 Lawler acres which the state planned to pay $2.9 million.

The 2,000 acres, he said, is located in the "heart" of the Suisun Marsh, but that offer was refused so at that point, Hofmann said, he turnedto his old friend and partner Boatwright.

"I approached Boatwright because he's the only one in the Assembly I can talk to. I did that after I became aware the state was going to pay $3 million for the land," Hofmann said.

Boatwright contends the land is worth $200 to $300 an acre (the going rate for cattle grazing land) and that the state would be paying too much if it bought the land for $4,500 an acre as planned.

He said he saved the state $1.8 million by preventing purchase of the Lawler acreage.

But neither Boatwright nor Hofmann explained how the state is saving money if it could have bought the land for $4,500 an acre while Hofmann was prepared to pay $6,000 per acre for it.

The 317 acres would be bought for "speculation" Hofmann acknowledged, but could eventually be developed as an addition to a subdivision now under construction across Highway 12.

New hope for mobile home credit seen

SAN FRANCISCO — Citizens Savings and Loan Association announced that it had sold the first Government National Mortgage Association guaranteed mortgage-backed security resulting from the Veterans Administration's new program of 20-year mobile home loans.

In announcing the sale of this new security, Anthony M. Frank, Citizens Savings Chairman and Chief Executive Officer said, "It is Citizen's hope and expectation that this type of (pooled mobile home) mortgage instrument, made possible by the newly liberalized VA and GNMA regulations, will stimulate an increase in the availability of much needed mobile home credit, thereby providing increased opportunities for shelter ownership to a large segment of America's population who are frustrated by the high prices of today's single family homes."

The $1,250,000 pool of mobile home mortgages represents about 75 individual loans to families with annual incomes of $7,000 to $14,000 a year. Recent changes in the VA program extended the maximum term for mobile loans from 15 to 20 years, thus reducing the monthly payments to individual borrowers. Monthly payments for mobile home mortgage holders in this pool range from $115.00 to $120.00.

Citizens Savings, a wholly-owned subsidiary of United Financial Corporation of California, is the nation's sixth largest state chartered savings institution with 74 authorized branch offices located throughout California.

Woodcreek's new packaged energy deal

A progressive Energy Conservation Package is being offered to homebuyers at Woodcreek, Shapell Industries' new Milpitas development.

"This package is similar to the one included in homes in our Greenbrae subdivision," said Stan Cook, vice-president of marketing and sales for Shapell Industries of Northern California. "Reasearch and experience have shown us that toMay's homebuyer is acutely sensitive to rising nergy costs. People are more than willing to cooperate by installing energy saving devices in their homes. At Woodcreek, however, they'll find 13 energy-savers already installed, included as standards.

"And," Cook added, "we at Shapell are careful to see that the energy saving units installed in our homes make energy conservation as convenient and painless as possible."

Each Woodcreek home includes the following: gas range with pilotless ignition; oven with window and light to avoid excessive opening of the oven door; dishwasher with energy-saving drying cycle; manual set-back furnace thermostat; furnace with pilotless ignition; clogged filter indicator on furnace; kitchen fluorescent lighting; bathroom fluorescent lighting; showerheads with three-gallon-per-minute flow control devices; three and one-half gallon flush toilet; fireplace with positive damper and no gas outlet; energy conservation model water heater; and insulated hot water piping through unheated areas.

A total of 300 single-family homes will be built at Woodcreek, ranging in size from approzimately 1,600 to 2,500-square feet. Three-, four-, and five-bedroom models will be available with two or three baths. Floor plans include one- and two-story, and split-level models.

Homes at Woodcreek are priced from $84,950.

As with other ShapelI Momes, many extra features usually offered as options on other homes are in the base price of Woodcreek homes. These include fencing, wood-burning fireplaces, dishwashers and double ovens, one of which is self-cleaning, the other microwave.

Other standard features include ceramic tile kitchen counters, double stainless steel kitchen sinks, ceramic tile entries, laundry tray in garage, smoke detectors, dead bolts on front and rear doors, and tile or shake roofs.

Woodcreek is located in a rural setting, nestled in the foothills of the Berryessa area, but within moments of Eastridge Shopping Mall, schools, colleges, a host of recreational facilities and three major freeways.

Sales office and five furnished models are open daily from 10 a.m. until 7 p.m. To reach Woodcreek, take Highway 101 to Tully Road East; right on Quimby to White Road; left on White to the models.

Briarwood goes up in Hayward

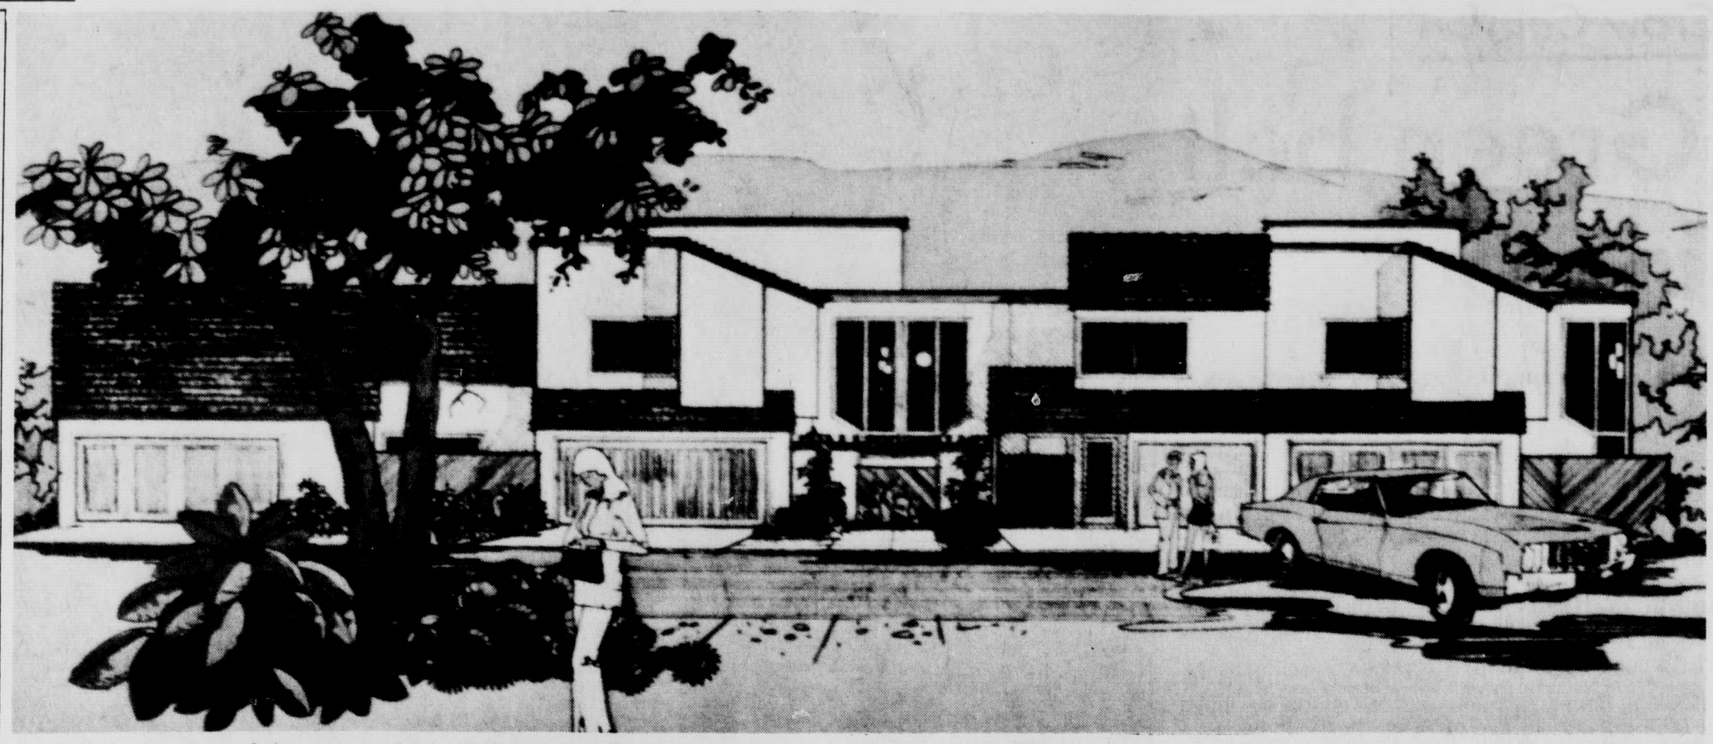
Ground breaking ceremonies for Phase II of Briarwood Townhouses, on Whitman Avenue in Hayward, Ca. took place September 6, 1977.

The 69 townhouses, which are clustered in 19 builings, will feature six different floor plans, ranging in size from 1090 to 1630 sq. ft. Two, three and four bedroom units, most of which include 2½ baths,will be offered Vaulted ceilings and wood-burning fireplaces highlight the living rooms. The all-electric kitchens will include garbage disposer, dishwasher and extensive counter and cabinet space, All units contain private fenced patios and heavy pile shag carpeting.

Common areas feature bermed landscaping, a large swimming pool and a children's play area. A recreation building with lounge, kitchen and game facilities is available for residents.

The units are scheduled to sell in the $50,000 to $66,000 price range. Occupancy is expected during Jaruary 1978.

Mayor Ilene Weinreb officiated at the ground breaking event on behalf of the City. Security Pacific National Bank, which is providing financing for the $4 million project, was represented hy real estate vice president Gerald McIntyre and loan officer Judith Fields. Robert and Nick Lattanzio of Southwest Enterprises Fresno, and Russell Kirschenbaum and Michael Blumenthal of Interbank Moragage Corporation, San Francisco, are joint venture partners of the development.



An artist's drawing of the soon-to-be-built Briarwood Townhouses gives an idea of what to expect at Hayward's Whitman Avenue development. Construction on some 69 townhouses began after groundbreaking ceremonies last week. Highlights of the new complex include bermed landscaping, a swimming pool and children's play area.

Jeff Blanchfield of the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission, which devised the marsh protection plan, contends that the Lawler property is vital to protection of the marsh.

Highway 12 provides a natural barrier where land development should stop, Blanchfield said.

"To preserve the integrity of the marsh, purchase of the land is very important," he added.

Blanchfield said Nejedly pushed for adoption of the amendment cutting out the land Hofmann plans to buy when the bill appeared before the Senate Wildlife and Natural Resources Committee and Finance Committee.

Hofmann said he approached Nejedly when the bill went to the Senate.

"John Nejedly was a very good listener to the problem. He was courteous to us," Hofmann said of the meeting.

But Hofmann said he brought the whole issue to Boatwright's attention because he is a taxpayer.

Boatwright is his assemblyman and, coincidentally, a friend and business partner, Hofmann said.

Boulder: A city limits housing

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — This handsome university town, a quiet white-collar community snuggled comfortably against the foothills of the Rocky Mountains, exploded with growth during the 1960s. Today, residents have applied the brakes with vengeance.

Boulder is the largest city in the nation to put a quota on growth, sharply limiting construction of new residential units.

Under regulations approved by citywide vote, Boulder's population will increase no more than 2 per cent annually — far from yearly rates of up to 8 per cent that raised Boulder's population from 20,000 in 1950 to nearly 90,000 today.

Boulder's plan limits housing developments to 415 units a year, half the current rate, and sets a merit system to decide what projects are approved.

Many in the business community say the restrictions go too far. The Chamber of Commerce, which complains that middle-income housing has nearly disappeared, is expected to seek repeal of the plan.

City Councilman Paul Danish says housing quotas will preserve the environmental and social atmosphere that attract a variety of residents dominated by academics, IBM employes and hippies turned entrepreneurs.

Critics say the development quotas simply serve to insulate Boulder from encroaching urban poverty of Denver 30 miles down the road and to unfairly confine lower-income families to that city and its environs.

Danish stresses Boulder's autonomy. He notes that the city has its own economy and — important these days — its own water system. "Most of us simply want to maintain Boulder's identity," he says.

In 1971, Boulder voters turned down a plan to limit population but changed their minds last November when they overrode a 5-4 city council rejection of the quota plan.

By restricting home building, the growth policy generated frenzied real estate activity. Home prices were up 13.5 per cent during the first three months of the year. But worries about runaway inflation waned when increases settled around 4 per cent in the following two months, though the cost of housing in the city is high, as always.

"The motive was not to make Boulder more exclusive," says Nolan Rosall, the planning director, "but certainly that's been the effect."

Boulder has checked expansion indirectly for nearly two decades, keeping a rein on development through utility hookup permits.

Both the Chamber of Commerce and Rosall endorse a compromise "comprehensive growth" plan. Boulder and Boulder County would be wedded to a joint growth management effort that could channel population increases away from the city and unincorporated rural areas to several small towns.

The planning director believes the 58-square-mile Boulder Valley needs stringent planning to maintain the environment and the proper levels of government sevices. But he says that as of today, the valley is far from overcrowded and "we have room to expand if we do it right."

He also believes Boulder may have a future responsibility to provide housing opportunities for low-income families.

Boulder's resolve to limit quantity is matched by its enthusiasm for quality.

Housing development is allocated on merit after builders submit applications detailing features of the homes. The merit system considers factors such as open-space commitments, landscaping, architectural and environmental design, energy conservation and access to public services and facilities.

City officials say Boulder also has the most successful open space program in the nation, with thousands of acres being put aside for recreational uses like hiking, horseback riding and fishing which do not entail developing the property.

Don Walker, Boulder's director of real estate and open space, says booming real estate values in the area bring added tax revenues.

"Property values surrounding the land go up, particularly near the mountains, because people know that they will be living near a park for years to come," he said.

New office

Ron Campbell, manager of Gallery of Homes, discusses his new Livermore office at 1564 First St., with Maid of Livermore Tonya Snel. Ron Massa of the Chamber of Commerce beams his approval. Grand opening will be held Sept. 15.

Sewer warning for Tahoe

Sacramento — Real Estate Director David H. Fox announced to developers of the $40 million Tahoe Donner Subdivision that while lot sales may be continued, they are subject to possible new prohibitions if sewage facilities appear to be inadequate in the future.

Acting in the public interest, the Department of Real Estate (DRE) imposed the original ban in February of last year based on substantial evidence that purchasers would have no assurance of adequate sewage treatment services. This situation resulted from construction of a new sewage treatment facility with a smaller capacity than the old system it was designed to replace which served the North Lake Tahoe and Truckee areas.

Fox's action followed a five-day hearing before Administrative Law Judge, Gilbert E. Elmore. Judge Elmore issued a proposed decision recommending that sales be allowed to continue at Tahoe Donner, and Fox concurred but emphasized that "it is clear to me that significant uncertainties still exist which preclude guaranteeing to any future buyer that adequate sewage disposal service will be provided when requested. However, the evidence presented indicats that the pr' ability of these facilities being available in the future is substantially better today than it was when the Desist and Refrain Orders were issued."

The Decision effects the sale of approximately 1,600 lots at Tahoe Donner. Department officials urge all prospective purchasers of these properties to read the Public Report issued by the DRE before deciding whether to buy. The report, an important consumer protection document, contains vital information about availability of sewage utility hookups, geologic hazards, applicable tax rates, restrictions, and fire protection, among other disclosures. A copy of the Public Report must be provided to a potential buyer prior to any purchase.

Course in investment analysis

The American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers' Northern California Chapter No. 11 will offer a six-week course in Investment Analysis (course VI) in cooperation with the University of San Francisco starting October 1.

Instructors for the course, which runs for 6 consecutive Saturdays, are Edward B. Greub, Vice President, Appraisal Division, Crocker National Bank, and Anthony B. Pace, Director Real Property Division, General Services Administration. Greub, formerly a fee appraiser for Coldwell Banker in San Francisco, is experienced in all types of commercial and industrial real estate with a specialization in investment analysis. Pace has extensive appraisal experience in acquisition and disposal of fee and leasehold interest and has lectured for real estate appraisal courses at University of California, Southern Methodist University, University of San Francisco, and Seattle University.

The Investment Analysis course expands the theory and techniques of analysis introduced in Course 1-B (Capitalization) emphasizing practical applications covering a comprehensive range of real etate investment situations. Covered in the course will be the objectives of investment analysis, effects of inflation and deflation, risk analysis, Ellwood Techniques — Present Value Calculations, Graphic Analysis and Yield Calculations. Additional topics include tax shelters, discounted cash flow analysis, and computer applications.

Prerequisite to enroilment in Investment Analysis is a passing grade on Required Examination 1-B (Capitalization). Investment Analysis will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on six consecutive Saturdays, October 1 through November 5, 1977, at the University of San Francisco, Golden Gate and Parker, Campion Hall, Room 12.

For enrollment application and more information, write Northern California Chapter 11, American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers, 46 Kearny Street, Room 403, San Francisco, Ca. 94108, or call (415) 391-1269.

Driscoll has tested in excess of 200,000 strawberries over the years (about ten years), out of these has come the patented G-3 or Heidi variety. The Heidi is grown by Driscoll along the cool Pacific Coast where it is packed under the rigid Driscoll quality control program. This results in one of the sweetest and finest strawberries grown.
